WPA TO START ARMY AND NAVY POST PROJECTS

$17,000,000 Allocated For Construction Work In Important Areas

47 JOBS ON SCHEDULE

California Yards Receive Million; Task General Throughout Nation

WASHINGTON, July 17 — The biggest federal relief agency — WPA—swung its workers into the national defense march today with allocation of more than $17,000,000 for construction work at army and navy posts.

Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, announcing 47 projects in 21 states totaling $7,260,653 for the army, and 23 projects in 14 states totaling $10,000,000 for the navy, said:

"These are the first allocations from our 1941 funds for projects to be operated by the War and Navy Departments."

Two of the largest projects call for expenditure of $1,000,000 for rehabilitation of buildings and barracks, and other improvements, at the Mare Island Navy Yard, Calif., and $900,000 for the same work at the Marine Corps base, naval air station, supply depot, training station and destroyer base at San Diego, Calif.

Other large-scale projects, all involving construction and rehabilitation work on buildings, utility systems, roads, etc., included:

California: San Clemente Island, fleet training base, $300,000; Terminal Island, fleet air base, $250,000. Colorado: Denver, Lowry Field, army air base, $350,000. Connecticut: New London submarine base, $200,000. Florida: Pensacola, naval air station, $700,000. Georgia: Fort Benning, including Lawson Field, $750,000. Illinois: Chanute Field, air base, $200,000; Waukegan, Great Lakes naval training station, $300,000. Indiana: Jeffersonville, quarter-master depot, $150,000. Kansas: Junction City, Fort Riley, including Marshall Field, $200,000; Fort Leavenworth, $150,000.

Other big projects were: Kentucky: Fort Knox, including Godman Field, $750,000; Louisville, $150,000.

FATHER OF SEVEN SMALL CHILDREN VICTIM OF TRAIN

WILMINGTON, July 17 — The mangled body of Dan Houser, 37, of nearby Morrisville, was found beside a B. & O. railroad track near Wilmington early today.

Houser's widow told Sheriff J. E. Hodson her husband left home early last night after declaring he would never see him again. Coroner C. E. Kinzel withheld a verdict pending further investigation.

Houser was the father of seven small children.

Executor Of Col. Ruppert Estate Makes Formal Announcement

NEW YORK, July 17 — Postmaster-General James A. Farley will take over the world's champion New York Yankees' baseball club in about two months. Confirmation of the sale to a syndicate headed by Farley was announced this afternoon by H. Garrison Sillick, Jr., one of the executors of the estate of the late Colonel Jacob E. Ruppert.

Sillick was forthright in confirmation of the sale which dispelled the mystery concerning Farley's future activities.

Confirmation came while Farley waited in Chicago for his name to be placed in nomination for the Democratic nomination for president.

Sillick said that because of the complex nature of contracts involving the Yankee property that at least two months would be required to consummate the deal.

The amount of money involved in the transaction was not made known.

TOLEDO, July 17—James A. Farley, national Democratic committee chairman, has been offered the chairmanship of the board of the Willys Overland Motors Co., of Toledo, at a salary of $100,000 a year, it was learned today.

Ward Canaday, present chairman, Joseph Frazier, president of the company, and George Ritter, company attorney, are in Chicago today attempting to close the deal.

WAGNER BLOCKS MOVE TO SCORE THIRD F. D. TERM

CHICAGO, July 17—A new attempt to force an anti-third term plank into the Democratic platform, as done in 1896, was rebuffed today when Sen. Robert F. Wagner, New York, chairman of the resolutions committee, refused to permit advocates of it to appear before the committee.

The demand for admittance to the full resolutions committee, which convened to approve a strong anti-war platform drafted by a 17-man subcommittee, was led by Rep. Elmer Ryan, Minnesota Democratic congressman.

Ryan, Kirby Vidrine, Phoenix, Ariz., and R. McGuire, Orlando, Fla., declared that delegates from 24 states backed the demand for an anti-third term plank.

"We delegates want to present this matter," said Ryan, intercepting Wagner in a hotel corridor outside the platform committee room.

"Oh," said Wagner, plainly irritated, "we are all through with hearings. We can't do that."

Ryan then issued a formal statement saying that in view of this refusal, the delegates would continue their battle. He declared that Mr. Roosevelt's position to the convention that he was not a candidate justified the group in demanding action.

COUNTY RECEIVES $1,740 TO PAY JUNE RELIEF

Pickaway County will receive $1,740 as its share of the $750,000 certified Wednesday by State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood as payment to Ohio cities and counties for financing poor relief in June.

Director Sherwood said the state's relief costs in June totaled $1,836,575, a decrease of $92,890 from May.

ROAD'S CLOSING ANGRERS BRITISH

Commons Questions Far East Action As "Trucking" To Japanese

LONDON, July 17—Charges of British "trucking" to Japan and disregard of American policies were aired in an angry session of the House of Commons this afternoon when the Anglo-Japanese agreement to close the Burma Road came up for debate.

Unexpectedly, Foreign Under-Secretary Austen Butler declined to make a promised detailed statement, pleading that the government had not yet received official news from Tokyo that the agreement had been reached.

(Editor's Note: Announcement of the agreement was made some hours earlier by the Japanese government. Secretary of State Cordell Hull declared last night that closing of the vital link from Burma into China "would constitute unwarranted interpositions of obstacles to world trade.")

Coincident with the agreement, it was announced that since January, 1939, Great Britain had forbidden export of arms and ammunition from Hong Kong.

For a period of three months from tomorrow, transit of all arms and ammunition as well as petroleum, trucks and railway material over the Burma Road will be forbidden.

Japanese consular officials at Hong Kong and Rangoon will maintain close contact with British.

Willkie Hears Barkley, Says President To Run

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 17—Whatever interpretation may be placed elsewhere on the message which President Roosevelt sent to the Democratic national convention it had one meaning today for Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee.

"The President will be nominated on the first ballot and will accept the nomination."

That was Willkie's immediate reaction to the cryptic message read to the Chicago convention by Senator Alben Barkley.

It was evident that Willkie does not believe that President Roosevelt eliminated himself as a candidate or even intended to.

Before dictating a brief statement voicing his personal interpretation of the President's message, Willkie studied a transcript of the message very carefully.

He noted particularly the choice of words—"the President has never had and has not today any desire of purpose to continue in

GLASS TO MEET FARLEY

CHICAGO, July 17 — Senator Carter Glass of Virginia arrived in Chicago today for the Democratic national convention, but refused to comment on the part he will play in the proceedings, saying he would have to confer with Postmaster-General James A. Farley before making a statement. The venerable senator reportedly has been selected to nominate Farley for the presidency.

IN a dramatic and unprecedented statement through the permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention in Chicago, Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, President Roosevelt declared that he never had desired to continue in office or to be nominated for a third term and released the more than 750 delegates pledged to him, but it was believed the action virtually assured the renomination of the President by draft. The announcement came at the end of an address by Senator Barkley, during which a wild, 25-minute demonstration was started by the senator's interpolated mention of President Roosevelt's name. This picture, taken at the height of the uproar, shows Barkley, indicated by arrow, on the speaker's rostrum as he attempted to restore order while state banners milled before him.

Woman, Standing Beside Baby's Cradle, Shot By Lover After Argument

LOGAN, July 17—Mrs. Lenora Brown, 29, of Lancaster, was reported in critical condition today in a Logan hospital from shotgun wounds which authorities said were inflicted by a man who reportedly said they quarreled after "going together" for a year.

The victim is the mother of a six-month old daughter, beside whose cradle she was standing when she was shot. The child escaped injury. The shooting occurred at the home of Mrs. Brown's sister in nearby Haydensville.

Hocking County Sheriff Joseph Farbeann said that the shooting was admitted by Darrel Mace, 35, father of three children, who also lives in Lancaster. Farbeann said Mace told him that he had intended to shoot Mrs. Brown and then take his own life, but relatives of the woman prevented it.

"I thought if we couldn't be together here we would be together in heaven," Farbeann quoted Mace as saying.

No charge has been placed against Mace.

BRITAIN ORDERS YOUNG AND AGED OFF GIBRALTAR

GIBRALTAR, July 17—Evacuation from Gibraltar "soon" of children under 17 years of age, men and women over 45 and of all physically unfit persons, was officially announced today.

While the brief announcement of the forthcoming evacuation did not go into detailed reasons, it is presumed that repeated air attacks on "the rock" were largely responsible for the decision to evacuate those whose presence might hinder the defense of Britain's "key to the Mediterranean."

President, Speaking Through Barkley, Says He Is Not Candidate And Has Never Asked Nomination For Third Term In Office

RUNNING-MATE REMAINS IN DOUBT

Resolutions Subcommittee Refuses To Okeh Requests Voiced By Executive For Aid To Allies, Virtual Army Conscription

CHICAGO, July 17—President Roosevelt will be drafted today for a third term as the "free choice" of the Democratic national convention and will accept renomination, after staging one of the shrewdest political coups d'etat in American political history.

Taking personal command of his own political fortunes, after his New Deal lieutenants provoked widespread resentment among delegates by bungling tactics, the President staked his future on one throw of the political dice. He sent a statement to the convention, expressing no desire to remain as president, or to be a candidate for renomination and releasing all delegates from voting for him.

The result was to insure his renomination.

The President will name his own running-mate, but he will not get the exact platform he desired. His running-mate will be either Secretary of State Cordell Hull of Tennessee, Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones of Texas, or Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina. Secretary Hull already has declined the honor, but there is a possibility that the President can persuade him to change his mind. Failing in this, the President will take Mr. Jones or Senator Byrnes as his running-mate, and probably in that order.

Upset in Committee

Mr. Roosevelt suffered one defeat, however, in the midst of all his success. His personal proposal for a preamble to the platform was rejected by unanimous vote of the resolutions subcommittee. His proposal suggested the convention pledge itself to extend "all aid" to the Allies, except the sending of troops, called for virtual conscription of all males into militarily useful niches and proposed to help defeated nations in Europe reestablish democracies.

The plank was junked, the actual paper on which it was written even being torn to pieces to keep its contents from posterity. The plank thereupon adopted ignored conscription, pledged the Democrats against "participation in foreign war," against sending "our armed forces to fight in lands across the seas" and promised to direct the administration's foreign policy toward "the security of our land and the maintenance of its peace."

The full resolutions committee—enlarged to take in a woman from each delegation—met to ratify the platform before submitting it to the convention for ratification this afternoon.

The nominating speeches will be made tonight, with Mr. Roosevelt probably nominated before tomorrow morning. This speed-up of the nomination—originally scheduled for Thursday night—led to conjecture that Mr. Roosevelt would come to Chicago to appear before the convention Friday night. The President's lieutenants denied this but intimated he might accept the renomination by a radio speech to the convention from his White House study.

Demonstrations Follow

The President literally captured the convention by his dramatic move to end the days of confusion that surrounded the efforts of his lieutenants to get him "drafted." His venture was a typical Roosevelt masterpiece. In the afternoon, he announced he had sent a message to Permanent Chairman Alben W. Barkley to read to the convention. BERLIN, July 17—"Successful" bombing of a British troop camp near Scapa Flow was reported by the German high command today, but adverse weather conditions held air force activity to a minimum, it was stated.

"The British troop camp at South Edde, Scapa Flow, was successfully bombed."

New Deal Washington Looks For Secretary Hull To Be F. D.'S Partner

VITAL REASONS CITED

Sumner Welles Would Step Up In Case Of Victory In November

WASHINGTON, July 17—As New Deal Washington sees the picture, the 1940 Democratic ticket is still going to be Roosevelt and Hull.

And Sen. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina will manage their campaign — provided James A. Farley steps out of the picture Saturday, as persistently reported from Chicago.

President Roosevelt's dramatic release last night of his 773½ pledged delegates, together with a renunciation of any inclination to remain in office for a third term, failed to startle any of his intimate associates.

They had expected it. Also, they expect the Chicago convention to "draft" the chief executive with over 900 votes on the first ballot, the nomination immediately thereafter to be made unanimous by the 1,094 delegates.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has let it be known he prefers to remain in his present job rather than become vice-presidential nominee.

May Persuade Hull

Those close to Mr. Roosevelt say that if the President can be persuaded to turn aside from his expressed desire to retire on January 20 next, Hull equally can be persuaded to sacrifice his personal wishes.

Although the White House inner circle earlier had been talking about Frank C. Walker, former Democratic national treasurer, for the national chairmanship, the betting today veered around to Byrnes. The South Carolina senator already is recognized as Chicago floor manager for the "draft Roosevelt" business, and the White House was understood to be well pleased with his staging of last night's convention session.

Secretary Hull is leaving Washington tomorrow for Havana to represent the United States at the Western Hemisphere economic and defense conference. President Roosevelt has indicated that he regards this meeting of the 21 American republics to agree on methods for combating the threat of European totalitarianism as one of the most important gatherings in Pan American history.

Hull will be traveling Friday when the Chicago delegates get around to choosing a vice presidential nominee. Administration intimates argue that his position and prestige at Havana would be enhanced materially if he arrives as the President's running mate. Selection of Hull as vice presidential candidate presumably would mean that Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles would be elevated to the top diplomatic portfolio if the Democratic ticket is successful in November. Mr. Roosevelt already has shown his confidence in Welles by sending him on the famed tour of belligerent capitals just before the European war broke out in full force.

Hull further is expected to appeal to the conservative elements, both in and out of the Democratic party.

Farley Ready to Quit

Word reaching Washington from Chicago is that Postmaster General James A. Farley will retire from the national chairmanship on Saturday to take over the New York Yankee ball club, but will offer to remain on in an advisory capacity to his successor until September 1.

The New Dealers would like to see "big Jim" carry through and manage the Roosevelt campaign again as he did so successfully in

Relief Officials Warned Concerning Regulations

COLUMBUS, July 17—State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood in a letter sent to relief administrators throughout Ohio urged that local relief rolls be purged of persons who refuse to accept available employment.

The welfare director pointed out that with limited funds on hand in many local communities, eliminating ineligible from the relief rolls would permit local authorities to conserve funds to assure that persons actually in need and with no employment opportunities would be provided for.

In his communication to local relief officials, Sherwood said: "I wish to call your attention to section 3, paragraph 2 of House Bill 675 which states in effect that any able-bodied person shall be ineligible for poor relief if he shall refuse work relief or shall refuse employment when available at reasonable wages under reasonable conditions as determined by the local relief authority."

"It is important that you take steps, if you have not already done so, to assure yourself that such persons are complying with this regulation and to require evidence that all work opportunities are being taken advantage of. Poor relief cases involving small families and particularly single persons without dependents need not have full time employment in order to remove themselves from the relief rolls. Relief allowances in these cases are small and if part time employment is accepted it will often be possible to remove 1932 and 1936. Apparently certain, however, that he will not, they welcome his reported intention of standing by until the first of September.

COMMENTATORS ADD WORDS

The role of the radio commentator in streamlining the average American's vocabulary so that he may keep up with the lightning progress of the war in Europe is without precedent in the history of journalism, according to Raymond Gram Swing, popular news analyst.

Many new words have become familiar through the efforts of radio and press; words such as "Blitzkrieg," for a lightning mechanized war, "parashot," for British sharpshooters defending England from Nazi "parachutists" — itself a word the war has frightfully extended in meaning. The "fifth column" marched into our vocabulary as a synonym for traitorous underground organizations disrupting industry and civilian morale behind the lines. Mr. Swing also explains that radio commentators have helped us understand the newly broadened meaning of such words as "appeasement," forever to be remembered in connection with Munich and former Prime Minister Chamberlain's ill-fated visit.

VETERANS BACK

Three veterans of dramatic serials returned to the air in a new type of play, dealing with the problems of a city girl in adjusting herself to country life, when "Earthworm," written and directed by Walter Hank Richards, was launched over WLW recently.

They are Minabelle Abbott, who had the original title role in "The Life of Mary Sothorn," and Kenneth Peters and Virginia Temples, who played in "Ma Perkins" and other dramas originating at NBC in Chicago.

The broadcast is being heard each Sunday at 3 p. m., and represents one of the first legitimate attempts to depict America's modern rural scene in a serious way. Peters has the role of Darrell Bennett, a college youth from the farm who brings back a citybred girl to be his wife. Miss Abbott is cast in the role of his mother and Miss Temples plays Ann Miller, the country girl who comes in for severe disappointment when Bennett marries.

BEAT THE BAND

Marvel Maxwell and Perry Como will share vocal honors on the Beat the Band broadcast Sunday, 5:30 p. m. Marvel swings out with "A Latin tune, Manhattan Moon, and You" and Como will be featured in "Fools Rush In." Ted Weems and the "Beat the Band" orchestra open and close the program with "Seems Like A Month of Sundays" and "From Monday On."

RADIO BRIEFS

It isn't all play for Andre Kostelanetz, the conductor, while he vacations between concerts at Cape Cod. Kostelanetz is working on a new radio program idea for fall unveiling and is making musical arrangements for it.

Gene Autry's programs will soon emanate from New York. Cowboy has been signed for a three-week engagement at Madison Square Garden Rodeo, his first personal appearance in Gotham.

Frankie Masters has plenty of luck with his song titles. He sold "Scatterbrain" for a hillbilly picture and now the orchestra leader is negotiating with another motion picture company which wants rights to the title of his latest tune, "Say When," for a romantic picture.

With a half hour being lopped off his Friday night concert periods for streamlining the format, Frank Black is now the focal point of a new musical program which the network intends to debut in the fall, with Black on the podium. He'll use all new singers who haven't had previous radio breaks.

Among comedians being sought for "Show of the Week" when it turns to comedy on its return to the air September 29 are Abbott and Costello, Milton Berle, Willie Howard, Joe Cook, Lou Holtz, Jack Pearl, Block and Sully, Stephen Fetchit and Ezra Stone.

Studio executives flew in from the coast this week to discuss with Bob Crosby, leader of the Dixieland band, the picture he's scheduled to make with Brother Bing Crosby. Date is set following the Crosby band's stay at Catalina.

As soon as his picture is finished on the coast Kay Kyser will steer his "College of Musical Knowledge" troupe right back to New York. Dates have been piling up in the east.

Peter Van Steeden is working on new original comedy tune to serve as introductory music for the "Wack of the Week" feature on the Abbott and Costello programs.

COLONEL BOWMAN, ARMY OFFICER, RETIRES SOON

COLUMBUS, July 17—Retirement of Col. Everett N. Bowman, of the Fifth Army Corps Area, widely-known in Ohio National Guard circles, was announced today by the War Department. Col. Bowman began his military career as a midshipman in the U. S. Navy in 1895. He and Mrs. Bowman will return to their native home in York, Nebr., on July 24.

BYRNES TO TAKE FARLEY'S PLACE, CAPITAL HEARS

New Deal Washington Looks For Secretary Hull To Be F. D.'S Partner

VITAL REASONS CITED

Summer Welles Would Step Up In Case Of Victory In November

WASHINGTON, July 17—As New Deal Washington sees the picture, the 1940 Democratic ticket is still going to be Roosevelt and Hull.

And Sen. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina will manage their campaign — provided James A. Farley steps out of the picture Saturday, as persistently reported from Chicago.

President Roosevelt's dramatic release last night of his 77½ pledged delegates, together with a renunciation of any inclination to remain in office for a third term, failed to startle any of his intimate associates.

OHIOANS THINK DRAFT OF F. D. CERTAINTY NOW

Only One Delegate States That Roosevelt Will Not Be In Race

OTHER CANDIDATES BUSY

Sawyer Grabs Banner, Takes Lead In Demonstration For Executive

CHICAGO, July 17—President Roosevelt's assertion that he doesn't want a third term was accepted today with a proverbial grain of salt by the large Ohio delegation to the Democratic National convention, a leader of a draft Roosevelt movement.

So far as could be ascertained only one of Ohio's sixty delegates—with 52 votes—believes Roosevelt will not run. He was delegate A. C. Shultz of the 13th district who expects Attorney General Robert Jackson and Senator Burton K. Wheeler will compose the national ticket.

But, consensus of other Ohio delegates was that finely phrased statement of the President conveyed to the convention by Chairman Alben Barkley of Kentucky was nothing more than the necessary preliminary to a draft Roosevelt drive.

The majority may be mistaken in this belief, but from National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, delegation chairman, on down, Ohioans, with the conspicuous exception of Schultz, felt that the President would be drafted possibly tonight, for a third term and that he would bow to the delegates' will.

"We are still for the President 100 percent," said Sawyer. "And if he indicates a choice for Vice President, Ohio's 52 delegates in all probability will go to that candidate."

Sawyer Boomed, Too
Sawyer himself was being boomed for Vice President along with a dozen other prominent Democrats. Some of the Ohio delegates felt that his chances for second place are good but others believed he could not compete with the strong organizations of Paul McNutt and other better known available.

Agents for McNutt, Governor Stark of Missouri, and other vice presidential hopefuls conferred with Sawyer and the delegation during the day but received no commitment. The delegation leadership is marking time to see what Roosevelt wants.

Active in behalf of McNutt among Ohioans was delegate Perry Faulkner, Montpelier, former Indiana War Veteran leader. Faulkner, incidentally, was chosen to place Sawyer's name in nomination for President at the nominal Ohio favorite son candidate, but as the draft Roosevelt movement picked up momentum over night it was extremely doubtful that he would have the opportunity of fulfilling this mission.

To Ohio went the distinction of starting the first demonstration for Roosevelt last night. Sawyer secured the Buckeye standard and started a parade of delegations at the first mention of the President's name by Senator Barkley. Whether by design or not, Martin L. Davey, caustic critic of the President during his two terms as Governor but now a delegate-at-large pledged to re-nominate Roosevelt, took part in the second demonstration near mid night.

Davey In Procession
Davey, a gubernatorial nominee, was seen marching behind the Ohio banner, but whether he was demonstrating for Roosevelt or merely leaving the Convention Hall only he knew.

Receiving little attention from Ohio delegates was a boom started by Arthur Limbach, former Executive Committee Chairman, to nominate his ex-school mate, President Robert M. Hutchins of Chicago University for Vice President. Limbach and Hutchins attended Oberlin College and later Yale University together.

EAST TEXAS CATTLE GAINS

LONGVIEW, Tex.—Beef and Dairy cattle on East Texas farms have increased 50 percent or more since the last U. S. farm census in 1925, according to a survey of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce. The figures were reached by a "sampling survey" of about ten percent of the counties in the region. In addition, hogs have increased 25 percent and sheep "noticeably."

Shifting of Political Scene Places Two Prominent Republican Wives In New Deal Inner Society Circle

Mrs. Frank Knox, left, and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, new cabinet hostesses.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17—While political forces clashed over the surprise nomination of Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson, capital society lifted a collective lorgnette to eye its two new cabinet hostesses.

Like their husbands crashing the "opposition" council, these two prominent Republican women have moved into the inner circle of reigning New Deal society.

Cabinet wives in this brilliant national capital are the accepted social royalty—and some ambitious (and loyal) Demo ladies may not smile on the "promotion" of the rival party wives.

To Mrs. Stimson, however, the official spotlight is nothing new and many Washington friends welcome her return from Long Island. She was a leading capital figure while her husband was secretary of state under President Herbert Hoover and secretary of war under President William Howard Taft.

Close Friends
In fact, Mrs. Stimson and the elder Mrs. Taft have maintained the warm friendship which grew during their close association in the official circle. Tourists who flock to the capital to admire the famous cherry blossoms may thank these two women for their thoughtful interest.

The government of Japan presented Mrs. Taft with the many flowering cherry trees and it was her idea to place them around Potomac park which was then under construction. The project was accomplished largely through the support of Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson.

Capital society expects the newly-appointed secretary of war and Mrs. Stimson to return to their charming old home here, Woodley, on Cathedral avenue. It has been occupied by Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, Jr.

Mrs. Stimson presided with grace and poise at the famous old estate which was labeled the summer White House in earlier years when chief executives were frequent visitors there. Cultured and attractive, Mrs. Stimson always had a gentle smile and a friendly welcome for her guests.

Diminutive, Dignified
Mrs. Stimson is diminutive with delicate features. She is always immaculately groomed, her long gray hair accenting a dignified appearance. She is the former Mabel Wellington White, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. White of Connecticut.

Educated by carefully chosen private tutors, Mrs. Stimson is definitely at home in any social or intellectual circles. Her knowledge of foreign languages and extensive travel abroad particularly fitted her to be a hostess to capital diplomats as the wife of the secretary of state.

Mrs. Stimson also feels a broad 'social' responsibility and has been a tireless worker in the Red Cross. Undoubtedly, she will resume her volunteer service now that she is returning to the national capital.

Although in Washington for several brief periods, Mrs. Knox has always shunned both the social and the political spotlight. However, the few who got to know her well at small affairs predict that she will accept graciously her social responsibilities.

DUNLAP SPEAKS AT PRESBYTERIAN CLUB'S SESSION

Renick Dunlap, Pickaway County farmer and assistant secretary of agriculture under Coolidge and Hoover administrations, told 35 members of the Presbyterian Men's Club at a luncheon meeting in the church Tuesday evening some of the experiences he has had and persons he had met when in Washington.

Among the Washington diplomats that he met Mr. Dunlap told the group that he knew Warren G. Harding the best, and said that Harding had once told him that he never wanted to be president. Coolidge was a brilliant man but had few friends, Mr. Dunlap said. Speaking of Hoover, he stated that he believed the ex-president worried more and worked harder at his job when in the White House than any of the other presidents he knew, but added that Hoover was no politician.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes was termed "a real fellow" by the Pickaway Countian who talked briefly about John Garner, Nicholas Longworth, Carter Glass, and Senators McNary and Burton. He also mentioned the late King George the Fifth, whom he had occasion to meet while attending the World's Dairy Congress in England in 1928. On other occasions he has met Edward, Duke of Windsor, and Stanley Baldwin, once prime minister of England.

A delegate to the Republican National convention which nominated Wendell L. Willkie for president, Mr. Dunlap stated that if the Democrats nominate President Roosevelt, as he said he believed they would, the race for the presidency would be "exciting."

COAST GUARD GETS HOT

ILWACO, Wash.—The radio detail of the United States coast guard is now moved into new quarters thanks to a defective heating pad. The 13-man crew was scheduled to move to the new station at North Head but reception proved so poor that the change was cancelled. Investigation revealed that a short-circuited heating pad belonging to an employee was the cause. Officials bought the man a new appliance.

It is estimated that Manhattan island is valued at $50,000,000,000.

Designated as the "First Fair in Ohio" the Fayette County Fair at Washington C. H. gets under way next Tuesday with what officials say is the "best program we've ever had."

Five big days and nights of real county fair exhibits and entertainment are on the bill.

Harness racing with more than 150 horses entered will be featured on four afternoons starting Tuesday. Three nights of horse shows with a full program for all classes of fancy horses will take place on the first three nights of the fair. An amateur show on Friday night and Ward Beam's Congress of Daredevils on Saturday afternoon an evening will fill the week's program in front of the grandstand.

New barns have been built to house more horses, new cattle barn, additional swine and sheep barns and a remodeling of the grandstand to provide more space for the Junior Fair are just a few of the many ground improvements made this year.

With a midway going full blast, plenty of rides and eating concessions and extensive agricultural displays both from the county Granges and 4-H clubs, everybody will find "things to do" during an all day visit.

The Fair Board has announced that there is plenty of parking space within the grounds, police protection, clean fun and amusement for all ages.

OHIOANS THINK DRAFT OF F. D. CERTAINTY NOW

Only One Delegate States That Roosevelt Will Not Be In Race

OTHER CANDIDATES BUSY

Sawyer Grabs Banner, Takes Lead In Demonstration For Executive

CHICAGO, July 17—President Roosevelt's assertion that he doesn't want a third term was accepted today with a proverbial grain of salt by the large Ohio delegation to the Democratic National convention, a leader of a draft Roosevelt movement.

So far as could be ascertained only one of Ohio's sixty delegates—with 52 votes—believes Roosevelt will not run. He was delegate A. C. Shultz of the 13th district who expects Attorney General Robert Jackson and Senator Burton K. Wheeler will compose the national ticket.

But, consensus of other Ohio delegates was that finely phrased statement of the President conveyed to the convention by Chairman Alben Barkley of Kentucky was nothing more than the necessary preliminary to a draft Roosevelt drive.

The majority may be mistaken in this belief, but from National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, delegation chairman, on down, Ohioans, with the conspicuous exception of Shultz, felt that the President would be drafted possibly tonight, for a third term and that he would bow to the delegates' will.

"We are still for the President 100 percent," said Sawyer. "And if he indicates a choice for Vice President, Ohio's 52 delegates in all probability will go to that candidate."

Sawyer Boomed, Too Sawyer himself was being boomed for Vice President along with a dozen other prominent Democrats. Some of the Ohio delegates felt that his chances for second place are good but others believed he could not compete with the strong organizations of Paul McNutt and other better known available.

Agents for McNutt, Governor Stark of Missouri, and other vice presidential hopefuls conferred with Sawyer and the delegation during the day but received no commitment. The delegation leadership is marking time to see what Roosevelt wants.

Active in behalf of McNutt among Ohioans was delegate Perry Faulkner, Montpelier, former Indiana War Veteran leader. Faulkner, incidentally, was chosen to place Sawyer's name in nomination for President at the nominal Ohio favorite son candidate, but as the draft Roosevelt movement picked up momentum over night it was extremely doubtful that he would have the opportunity of fulfilling this mission.

To Ohio went the distinction of starting the first demonstration for Roosevelt last night. Sawyer secured the Buckeye standard and started a parade of delegations at the first mention of the President's name by Senator Barkley.

Whether by design or not, Martin L. Davey, caustic critic of the President during his two terms as Governor but now a delegate-at-large pledged to re-nominate Roosevelt, took part in the second demonstration near mid night.

Davey In Procession Davey, a gubernatorial nominee, was seen marching behind the Ohio banner, but whether he was demonstrating for Roosevelt or merely leaving the Convention Hall only he knew.

Receiving little attention from Ohio delegates was a boom started by Arthur Limbach, former Executive Committee Chairman, to nominate his ex-school mate, President Robert M. Hutchins of Chicago University for Vice President. Limbach and Hutchins attended Oberlin College and later Yale University together.

EAST TEXAS CATTLE GAINS

LONGVIEW, Tex.—Beef and Dairy cattle on East Texas farms have increased 50 percent or more since the last U. S. farm census in 1925, according to a survey of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce. The figures were reached by a "sampling survey" of about ten percent of the counties in the region. In addition, hogs have increased 25 percent and sheep "noticeably."

Shifting of Political Scene Places Two Prominent Republican Wives In New Deal Inner Society Circle

Mrs. Frank Knox, left, and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, new cabinet hostesses.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17—While political forces clashed over the surprise nomination of Col. Frank Knox and Henry L. Stimson, capital society lifted a collective lorgnette to eye its two new cabinet hostesses.

Like their husbands crashing the "opposition" council, these two prominent Republican women have moved into the inner circle of reigning New Deal society.

Cabinet wives in this brilliant national capital are the accepted social royalty—and some ambitious (and loyal) Demo ladies may not smile on the "promotion" of the rival party wives.

To Mrs. Stimson, however, the official spotlight is nothing new and many Washington friends welcome her return from Long Island. She was a leading capital figure while her husband was secretary of state under President Herbert Hoover and secretary of war under President William Howard Taft.

Close Friends

In fact, Mrs. Stimson and the elder Mrs. Taft have maintained the warm friendship which grew during their close association in the official circle. Tourists who flock to the capital to admire the famous cherry blossoms may thank these two women for their thoughtful interest.

The government of Japan presented Mrs. Taft with the many flowering cherry trees and it was her idea to place them around Potomac park which was then under construction. The project was accomplished largely through the support of Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson.

WAY CLEAR FOR DEMOCRATS TO PICK PRESIDENT

the delegates staged a 23-minute demonstration.

And when Barkley read his message, a wild 45-minute demonstration followed, in which leaders of every delegation—including Texas and Montana—shrieked their endorsement of the President with wild cries of: "We want Roosevelt!" It was apparent this convention really wanted Roosevelt too.

Here is Barkley's delivery of the Roosevelt message:

"I and other close friends of the President have long known that he has no wish to be a candidate again. We know too that in no way whatsoever has he exerted any influence in the selection of delegates or on the opinions of delegates to this convention.

"Tonight at the specific request and authorization of the President I am making this simple fact clear to this convention.

"The President never has and has not today any desire or purpose to continue in the office of president, to be a candidate for that office or to be nominated by the convention for that office.

"He wishes in all earnestness and sincerity to make it clear that all the delegates to this convention are free to vote for any candidate.

"That is the message I hear to you from the President of the United States by authority of his word."

That was all, but it was enough. The Democrats grabbed their state standards and galloped into the aisles. The convention organ appropriately played, "Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones." The nomination was in the bag.

Every delegation in the auditorium gave Roosevelt his answer. The answer was: "We want Roosevelt."

F. D. Will Accept

The New Deal lieutenants immediately scurried around the convention, telling the delegates that "Roosevelt will accept."

The emphasized the fact that he had not said he would refuse the nomination. Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace then made it official by predicting acceptance.

Hopkins, whom Roosevelt really ousted as his convention manager, said:

"Nothing but the situation that has developed in the last year and particularly our domestic problems would give me the feeling and assurance that I have that when the President is nominated tonight, these internal economic situations will be compelling reasons why he will accept."

Former Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California, gave this explanation of the President's maneuver:

"The President didn't want any delegates to feel obligated to vote for him. He is not seeking the nomination and is in no sense a candidate. However, when he sees he has a mandate from the people—as expressed by this convention—to run for another term, he will accept the summons in this period of great world crisis."

New Dealers made no secret of the fact that the President had taken charge of his own fortunes. They asserted that Mr. Roosevelt had told them time and again he did not desire renomination while they had insisted to him that he was the sole hope of the party to

JAPANESE EXAMINE NINE SHIPS IN CHINESE AREA

TOKYO, July 17—Japanese warships today stopped and examined nine ships, including an American vessel, which were steaming to safety from an artillery duel between the naval craft and Chinese forces at Dhenhai, according to a report from Dohi, official Japanese news agency.

One of the nine vessels, a British ship, was detained, Dohi reported.

The ships halted by the Japanese included one American, three British, three German, one Norwegian and one Portuguese, the news agency stated.

win in November. But they admitted they had never received a direct commitment from him that he would run—only a vague indication that he might accept if he were "drafted" by virtually unanimous action of the convention.

Lieutenants Muff Job

The lieutenants tried to arrange such a draft. They failed. Their efforts really angered and annoyed delegates. Resentment grew, particularly since even delegation leaders were uninformed as to whether the President desired renomination, would accept if drafted or planned to reject a third term.

New Dealers also disclosed that Mr. Roosevelt was seriously concerned by reports early Tuesday that the convention was "dying on its feet" from lack of interest and that delegates were showing their resentment. He finally decided to take matters into his own hands and explain his position, not only to the convention but to the American people as well.

The outcome will be his renomination, probably tonight—his acceptance, tomorrow or Friday.

East made it clear to any careful kibitzer that he not only had enough spades to bid them, plus enough clubs to double that suit, but that he also held enough diamonds to double them. Had he not held a sizeable number of diamonds, he should not have doubled clubs. In consequence of having so many spades, clubs and diamonds, he could not have held more than perhaps one heart, and possibly none.

Since North's bidding of the two suits proclaimed that he hadn't enough hearts to support his partner's suit, it should have been clear to South that they could be nowhere except bunched in West's hand. Over East's double of 3-Clubs, he should have bid only 3-Hearts. Maybe West would have doubled this and maybe he would not. In any event, though, the play that developed would have set this contract one trick, not two.

Both North and East advertised to South the fact that West had a lot of hearts, but South was not listening. He could have reasoned it all out. North showed enough diamonds and clubs to bid both of those suits—in fact, a very large number of them, or otherwise he would never have taken out South's business double of spades.

Over 1-Club by East on this deal, why should South not make a shutout jump bid of 3-Hearts or 4-Hearts?

Butler declined to reply, whereupon Mander asked:

The speaker of the house called for order and Butler accused Mander of being "irresponsible."

Then Emanuel Shinwell, laborite, asked Butler to "make it perfectly clear that while Britain is anxious to avoid an open quarrel, we are not going to truckle to Japan."

Once again Butler asked the house to await his full statement, and Wilfrid Roberts announced he would again raise the whole question on adjournment.

NEW YORK, July 17—Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong today weighed in at 139 pounds, 3½ more than the 135½ registered by Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins for their 12-round non-title fight at the Polo Grounds tonight.

Despite overcast skies, Promoter Mike Jacobs reiterated that he expected a crowd of between 30,000 and 40,000 unless a rain-storm should blow in and blow out the lines of ticket-buyers.

QUESTION: Shall I cut the suckers off my night blooming cereus? It is about three years old and the suckers are two feet long; one from the leaf, the other from the main stem to the surface. How long will I have to keep it before blooming? Does it require much moisture? The mother plant did not bloom under 10 years.

ANSWER: I would leave all of the growth on the night blooming cereus. I believe the trouble most people have with them not blooming is the fact that they do not water them sufficiently and regularly, and do not fertilize them adequately. You will find complete instructions on the care of the cereus and other house plants in our bulletin on house plants which you can secure from county agricultural agents.

QUESTION: This spring we reseeded large spots of our old lawn. It is a large lawn and most of it gets plenty of sun, yet it is dying in several places. We used a good grade of seed. Can you tell us what is wrong and what to do?

ANSWER: Although it is impossible to give you a definite diagnosis of your difficulty without actually seeing the lawn, I believe from observation of other lawns, the trouble you are having with it is the same as many others are having due to the extreme amount of rainfall which has left the grass soft and succulent. Where new seedlings have been mowed and the clippings left on so that they have matted, these spots seem to be dying much more severely than others. There is nothing that I can suggest for you to do to help this. Ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on lawns which describes all the various diseases and gives methods for their control.

QUESTION: When is the best time to prune and move climbing roses such as Dr. Van Fleet and Paul Scarlett? Mrs. H. H., New London.

ANSWER: Climbing roses are best pruned after they have finished blooming, the old wood being cut out clear to the ground. If the roses are not particularly vigorous you may want to keep this wood the second year. You will find complete instructions on the culture and care of roses in our bulletin Garden Roses which you may secure from your county agricultural agent.

QUESTION: What is the best way to control the weeping willow beetle? The tree is by my rock garden and lily pool where my gold fish are, and I am afraid to spray with some things because of poisoning my fish.

ANSWER: The various pyrethrum or rotenone sprays will be satisfactory in the control of the insects attacking the foliage of your willow but you must remember that these materials leave no poison on the foliage but kill insects by contact with the insects so that you must bring the spray directly in contact with each one the delegates staged a 23-minute demonstration.

WAY CLEAR FOR DEMOCRATS TO PICK PRESIDENT

And when Barkley read his message, a wild 45-minute demonstration followed, in which leaders of every delegation—including Texas and Montana—shrieked their endorsement of the President with wild cries of: "We want Roosevelt." It was apparent this convention really wanted Roosevelt too.

Here is Barkley's delivery of the Roosevelt message:

"I and other close friends of the President have long known that he has no wish to be a candidate again. We know too that in no way whatsoever has he exerted any influence in the selection of delegates or on the opinions of delegates to this convention.

"Tonight at the specific request and authorization of the President I am making this simple fact clear to this convention.

"The President never has and has not today any desire or purpose to continue in the office of president, to be a candidate for that office or to be nominated by the convention for that office.

"He wishes in all earnestness and sincerity to make it clear that all the delegates to this convention are free to vote for any candidate.

"That is the message I bear to you from the President of the United States by authority of his word."

That was all, but it was enough. The Democrats grabbed their state standards and galloped into the aisles. The convention organ appropriately played, "Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones." The nomination was in the bag.

Every delegation in the auditorium gave Roosevelt his answer. The answer was: "We want Roosevelt."

F. D. Will Accept

The New Deal lieutenants immediately scurried around the convention, telling the delegates that "Roosevelt will accept."

The emphasized the fact that he had not said he would refuse the nomination. Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins, Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace then made it official by predicting acceptance.

Hopkins, whom Roosevelt really ousted as his convention manager, said:

"Nothing but the situation that has developed in the last year and particularly our domestic problems would give me the feeling and assurance that I have that when the President is nominated tonight, these internal economic situations will be compelling reasons why he will accept."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

HARK! DANGER SIGNALS!

AIR RAID alarms have been devised for the best interests of the community. They would be of no value if nobody paid heed to them, but instead everybody ran out into the open streets to watch the excitement. That would be just what the enemy would love, and therefore they seldom have such an effect. The same kind of warnings go unheeded, however, in the mimic war which is bridge. Plenty of players keep right on in the face of danger signals to unnecessary defeats.

ARMSTRONG WEIGHS 138, LEW JENKINS IS 135½

NEW YORK, July 17—Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong today weighed in at 139 pounds, 3½ more than the 135½ registered by Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins for their 12-round non-title fight at the Polo Grounds tonight.

The fighters and their handlers said the weights were "perfect," and boxing commission physicians pronounced them ready for the battle.

Despite overcast skies, Promoter Mike Jacobs reiterated that he expected a crowd of between 30,000 and 40,000 unless a rain-storm should blow in and blow out the lines of ticket-buyers.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES, O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: Shall I cut the suckers off my night blooming cereus? It is about three years old and the suckers are two feet long; one from the leaf, the other from the main stem to the surface. How long will I have to keep it before blooming? Does it require much moisture? The mother plant did not bloom under 10 years.

ANSWER: I would leave all of the growth on the night blooming cereus. I believe the trouble most people have with them not blooming is the fact that they do not water them sufficiently and regularly, and do not fertilize them adequately. You will find complete instructions on the care of the cereus and other house plants in our bulletin on house plants which you can secure from county agricultural agents.

QUESTION: This spring we reseeded large spots of our old lawn. It is a large lawn and most of it gets plenty of sun, yet it is dying in several places. We used a good grade of seed. Can you tell us what is wrong and what to do?

ANSWER: Although it is impossible to give you a definite diagnosis of your difficulty without actually seeing the lawn, I believe from observation of other lawns, the trouble you are having with it is the same as many others are having due to the extreme amount of rainfall which has left the grass soft and succulent. Where new seedlings have been mowed and the clippings left on so that they have matted, these spots seem to be dying much more severely than others. There is nothing that I can suggest for you to do to help this. Ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of our bulletin on lawns which describes all the various diseases and gives methods for their control.

QUESTION: When is the best time to prune and move climbing roses such as Dr. Van Fleet and Paul Scarlet? Mrs. H. H. New, London.

ANSWER: Climbing roses are best pruned after they have finished blooming, the old wood being cut out clear to the ground. If the roses are not particularly vigorous you may want to keep this wood the second year. You will find complete instructions on the culture and care of roses in our bulletin Garden Roses which you may secure from your county agricultural agent.

QUESTION: What is the best way to control the weeping willow beetle? The tree is by my rock garden and lily pool where my gold fish are, and I am afraid to spray with some things because of poisoning my fish.

ANSWER: The various pyrethrum or rotenone sprays will be satisfactory in the control of the insects attacking the foliage of your willow but you must remember that these materials leave no poison on the foliage but kill entirely by contact with the insects so that you must bring the spray directly in contact with each one

TARLTON

The King's Helpers Class met Thursday evening at the Methodist Parsonage, with the Senior Ladies' and Young People's classes as guests. Sixty were present. After the devotions, business and program, refreshments were served by Mrs. S. N. Root, Mrs. Amos Foust and Mrs. Clarence Judy.

Mrs. Myrtle Reichelderfer returned home Sunday after spending a week with relatives in Columbus.

Miss Mary Porter attended the camp-meeting at Lancaster, Sunday.

Mrs. William Kohler, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kohler and son Tommy of Clearport were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Hedges Thursday evening.

No, the political campaign isn't really an interruption; rearmament goes right on, with the hearty approval of both sides.

ANSWER: Although it is impossible to tell you just what particular worm is eating your foliage without seeing it, the control of all of these is the same, that is, the application of some poison such as arsenate of lead to the foliage either as a dust or as a spray so that it will be eaten along with the plant. You will also find that any of these insects that are eating the foliage may be killed by spraying or dusting them with a rotenone or pyrethrum spray. This material kills when it comes in contact with the insect so that you must hit each one in order to kill it.

Fifth Column's Role In France's Debacle Told By Witness Of War

(Editor's Note: Back in America and free at last from censorship, Kenneth Downs, manager of the Paris bureau and chief Western Front correspondent for International News Service, today writes the first chapter of an exclusive series revealing the real—and hitherto untold—reasons for the collapse of France and her famous military machine in the face of Germany's blitzkrieg.)

By Kenneth Downs

NEW YORK, July 17—On the night of May 15 I was en route to Paris by refugee train. I was going back from the Meuse Front to find out why all correspondents had been blindfolded and handcuffed—stopped from learning or telling anything about the tremendous events then shaping.

It took eighteen hours to make this four-hour trip. There were continual air raids. Shattered rails had to be repaired. We were re-routed twice.

During a pause between St. Quentin and Ham, some eighty miles west of the Meuse, we were stopped for the fifteenth time. I stepped out of the jammed coach and lay down in a patch of clover.

As I looked up into the starless night a cold chill passed over me. The ground seemed to vibrate. The air was suddenly filled with an ominous, far-reaching, deep-voiced gabble; a vague and distant and sinister sound.

I didn't know what it meant, but my reporter's sixth sense told me it was disaster.

It was not until two days later that I learned it was a German barrage laid down not 25 miles back, in country we had traversed earlier that day. By its tremendous volume and nearness it signaled (though I couldn't believe the signals then) the collapse of the Ninth French army—and, with that collapse, the fall of France. It was the break-through.

Ninth Army Destroyed

General Andre Corap's Ninth Army, at whose headquarters in Vervins I had been two days before, was being pulverized—beaten to a very considerable and probably decisive extent by fifth columnists within its ranks. By fifth columnists, in this instance, I mean, not French traitors, but incredibly daring German spies who, disguised as junior officers and non-commissioned officers, had spread panic through every wavering, hard-pressed unit of the army.

As for France, even without the "cinquieme columnists," France had been traveling the road toward defeat since the second month of the war.

Why was the world not told of what was happening? Because of the French censorship—a paralyzing, sinister censorship which I have reason to believe contained its good share of Nazi agents and which contributed materially to France's defeat. It was a censorship which consistently deceived the French people as to the real state of affairs and, in the course of doing, also deceived the world.

This censorship hid the facts from France before the war ever started. It combined with German astuteness and patience to undermine French morale during the long months of the so-called "phony war." And, when the real war started, it helped hide the devastating operations of Germany's amazingly potent army and efficient fifth columnist from parachutists in the field to civilian agents in the very capital.

A day before that mighty, swiftly-advancing Nazi barrage had announced the doom of the Ninth Army, I had stood in a room which saw the end of a typical German fifth columnist—the kind of men who spread panic through the French forces everywhere in that vital sector and contributed incalculably to their collapse.

Story Told By Captain

A captain of the intelligence service of the Sixth Motorized Division of the adjoining Second Army—a truly heroic division which destroyed the Gross Deutschland regiment of a crack Panzer division, the elite regiment of the entire German army, occupying a place similar to that of the old imperial guard—told me the story.

The captain was telling me how his men had rallied after the first demoralizing shock of the new warfare.

"In the first two or three days of the terrible dive-bombing attacks, our men were rattled," he explained. "There were 'flottments' everywhere, broken units drifting back from the front. But when we stopped them—we at headquarters didn't sleep for five days; we are manning all roads—and questioned them. They always seemed surprised, 'but isn't there an order for a retreat?' they invariably asked.

in advance. They came at night. They dropped by parachute. They got in by all means. They were carefully trained. They had French uniforms. They knew their stuff.

"We got one right here where you stand. You see that spot on the floor?" He pointed to the floor of what had been the dining room of the farm house.

"Position Hopeless"

"This man was dressed in the uniform of a second lieutenant. He came late at night, breathless. He said he was from the adjoining division. He said: 'We have been hard hit. Our position is hopeless. We are even cut off from the army headquarters. Can you put me through to the army?'"

"We were stunned to learn this division on our left flank was smashed. While preparing to rush through a call to the army we fortunately followed the routine and asked for his papers. He reached in his pocket. A look of consternation crossed his face. He said, 'my God I have even lost my papers!'"

"We were at once on guard and began to question him. He saw his game was up and reached for his pistol. A little captain from Paris beat him to the draw. He shot where you stand. He had great nerve, but he was unlucky." This was the technique employed by Nazi agents at the front. They seldom ordered retreats. They spread panic by innuendo, disseminating rumors of retreat, or indicating that units on all sides were fleeing. It was effective. It was astounding to find how well this technique worked out in an army as compact as the French.

The Germans won the war with their all-out attack on and over and within the French Ninth Army. They seized the bridges of the Meuse and their tanks were pouring across them before the army headquarters had even begun to realize the necessity of blowing them up.

When weary, ineffective Generalissimo Maurice Gamelin, who was never meant to lead the army at war and whom the lowest subaltern in the army felt would be replaced in time, learned of the break-through on the Meuse, he did an incredible thing. Before his staff at La Ferté he threw up his hands in despair. He clutched his gray temples and said: "Tout est perdu" (all is lost). He was right.

No army ever won a more brilliant victory than that of the German Panzer divisions on the Meuse. No surgeon ever performed a more deft and masterful operation. That victory, with the great offensive, beat France. You can't get away from that. You can talk about treachery and "sell-outs" and all the rest, but the fact remains France lost because she was thoroughly beaten on the field.

French Heroic

French troops fought with flaming heroism. But their military machine proved to be a horse and buggy affair against a great, streamlined martian express.

The French intelligence service knew this great instrument was being constructed. But during the years before the war and during the months before the fatal offensive, internal dissension, incredible factional hatreds rotted away the spine of France while Germany waited to strike—a lean, hungry, savage cat at the rat-hole in the Maginot Line—waiting for the moment to pounce.

In another chapter I shall tell of the conditions which made it possible for them to leap at that rat-hole with such devastating success.

Barkley Lauds Seven Year New Deal Record

CHICAGO, July 17—As the "draft Roosevelt" movement headed toward its climax today at the Democratic national convention, delegates and party leaders pointed to last night's speech by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, permanent chairman, as having clearly stated the case the New Deal will bring to the people for decision in November.

Senator Barkley, whose words touched off one of the first spontaneous ovations for the President, declared that the record the party "is written in the history of the republic."

"While we lay no claim to perfection and fulminate no pretensions that this record contains no errors," Barkley said, "nevertheless we contemplate with pride the great tasks we have undertaken and accomplished in behalf of democracy and those who believe in it and strive to advance it."

The Democratic party, the Kentuckian asserted, "has been tested in the crucible of faith and achievement." By contrast, Barkley harked to the platform laid down by the Republicans at Philadelphia, which he said "appeared to have been written in mud by the migratory feet of a weasel."

"The Republican platform," Barkley charged, "is the perfect example of the uncertainties and ambiguities of men who do not know where they are going or er sacrifices to avoid involvement in war than have been made by the Democratic party and its present administration."

It was following delivery of this prepared speech that Senator Barkley read the statement authorized by President Roosevelt, which stated the President is not a candidate for another term.

NAZI SHIP QUILTS SAFE HAVEN FOR JOURNEY AT SEA

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 17—The 9,179-ton German refrigerator ship Weser today was "somewhere in the Pacific" after a sudden departure from Puntarenas, where the vessel had taken refuge at the outbreak of the European war.

Under command of Capt. F. Voight, the ship hastily sailed from Puntarenas last night, ostensibly headed for Manzanillo, Mexico. In view of the ship's assumed destination, it was considered noteworthy that a Mexican destroyer has been seen in the vicinity during the last few days.

On the war question, Barkley declared that "no man who ever occupied the presidency of the United States ever strove more valiantly to avert the present war in Europe before its outbreak than Mr. Roosevelt." He added: "No political party or administration in the history of this or any other nation ever made great-

General Andre Corap's Ninth Army, at whose headquarters in Vervins I had been two days before, was being pulverized—beaten to a very considerable and probably decisive extent by fifth columnists within its ranks. By fifth columnists, in this instance, I mean, not French traitors, but incredibly daring German spies who, disguised as junior officers and non-commissioned officers, had spread panic through every wavering, hard-pressed unit of the army.

As for France, even without the "cinquieme columnists," France had been traveling the road toward defeat since the second month of the war.

Why was the world not told of what was happening? Because of the French censorship—a paralyzing, sinister censorship which I have reason to believe contained its good share of Nazi agents and which contributed materially to France's defeat. It was a censorship which consistently deceived the French people as to the real state of affairs and, in the course of doing, also deceived the world.

This censorship hid the facts from France before the war ever started. It combined with German astuteness and patience to undermine French morale during the long months of the so-called "phony war." And, when the real war started, it helped hide the devastating operations of Germany's amazingly potent army and efficient fifth columnist from parachutists in the field to civilian agents in the very capital.

A day before that mighty, swiftly-advancing Nazi barrage had announced the doom of the Ninth Army, I had stood in a room which saw the end of a typical German fifth columnist—the kind of men who spread panic through the French forces everywhere in that vital sector and contributed incalculably to their collapse.

Story Told By Captain

A captain of the intelligence service of the Sixth Motorized Division of the adjoining Second Army—a truly heroic division which destroyed the Gross Deutschland regiment of a crack Panzer division, the elite regiment of the entire German army, occupying a place similar to that of the old imperial guard—told me the story.

The captain was telling me how his men had rallied after the first demoralizing shock of the new warfare.

in advance. They came at night. They dropped by parachute. They got in by all means. They were carefully trained. They had French uniforms. They knew their stuff.

"We got one right here where you stand. You see that spot on the floor?" He pointed to the floor of what had been the dining room of the farm house.

"Position Hopeless"

"This man was dressed in the uniform of a second lieutenant. He came late at night, breathless. He said he was from the adjoining division. He said: 'We have been hard hit. Our position is hopeless. We are even cut off from the army headquarters. Can you put me through to the army?'"

"We were stunned to learn this division on our left flank was smashed. While preparing to rush through a call to the army we fortunately followed the routine and asked for his papers. He reached in his pocket. A look of consternation crossed his face. He said, 'my God I have even lost my papers!'"

"We were at once on guard and began to question him. He saw his game was up and reached for his pistol. A little captain from Paris beat him to the draw. He shot where you stand. He had great nerve, but he was unlucky." This was the technique employed by Nazi agents at the front. They seldom ordered retreats. They spread panic by innuendo, disseminating rumors of retreat, or indicating that units on all sides were fleeing. It was effective. It was astounding to find how well this technique worked out in an army as compact as the French.

The Germans won the war with their all-out attack on and over and within the French Ninth Army. They seized the bridges of the Meuse and their tanks were pouring across them before the army headquarters had even begun to realize the necessity of blowing them up.

When weary, ineffective Generalissimo Maurice Gamelin, who was never meant to lead the army at war and whom the lowest subaltern in the army felt would be replaced in time, learned of the break-through on the Meuse, he did an incredible thing. Before his staff at La Ferte he threw up his hands in despair. He clutched his gray temples and said: "Tout est perdu" (all is lost). He was right.

No army ever won a more brilliant victory than that of the German Panzer divisions on the Meuse. No surgeon ever performed a more deft and masterful operation. That victory, with- in a week from the start of the great offensive, beat France. You can't get away from that. You can talk about treachery and "sell-outs" and all the rest, but the fact remains France lost because she was thoroughly beaten on the field.

French Heroic

French troops fought with flaming heroism. But their military machine proved to be a horse and buggy affair against a great, streamlined martian express.

The French intelligence service knew this great instrument was being constructed. But during the years before the war and during the months before the fatal offensive, internal dissension, incredible factional hatreds rotted away the spine of France while Germany waited to strike—a lean, hungry, savage cat at the rat-hole in the Maginot Line—waiting for the moment to pounce.

In another chapter I shall tell of the conditions which made it possible for them to leap at that rat-hole with such devastating success.

Barkley Lauds Seven Year New Deal Record

CHICAGO, July 17—As the "draft Roosevelt" movement headed toward its climax today at the Democratic national convention, delegates and party leaders pointed to last night's speech by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, permanent chairman, as having clearly stated the case the New Deal will bring to the people for decision in November.

Senator Barkley, whose words touched off one of the first spontaneous ovations for the President, declared that the record the party has made in the last seven years "is written in the history of the republic."

"While we lay no claim to perfection and fulminate no pretensions that this record contains no errors," Barkley said, "nevertheless we contemplate with pride the great tasks we have undertaken and accomplished in behalf of democracy and those who believe in it and strive to advance it."

The Democratic party, the Kentuckian asserted, "has been tested in the crucible of faith and achievement." By contrast, Barkley harked to the platform laid down by the Republicans at Philadelphia, which he said "appeared to have been written in mud by the migratory fowl of a weasel."

"The Republican platform," Barkley charged, "is the perfect example of the uncertainties and ambiguities of men who do not know where they are going or er sacrifices to avoid involvement in war than have been made by the Democratic party and its present administration."

It was following delivery of this prepared speech that Senator Barkley read the statement authorized by President Roosevelt which stated the President is not a candidate for another term.

NAZI SHIP QUILTS SAFE HAVEN FOR JOURNEY AT SEA

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 17—The 9,179-ton German refrigerator ship Weser today was "somewhere in the Pacific" after a sudden departure from Puntarenas, where the vessel had taken refuge at the outbreak of the European war.

Under command of Capt. F. Voight, the ship hastily sailed from Puntarenas last night, ostensibly headed for Manzanillo, Mexico. In view of the ship's assumed destination, it was considered noteworthy that a Mexican destroyer has been seen in the vicinity during the last few days.

NEW WORLD'S BIG PROBLEMS

THERE are produced in South America great quantities of agricultural products which compete in world market with similar products of North America. There have long been bitter antagonisms in the marketing of beaves, wheat and cotton of the two temperate zones of this hemisphere.

Today, however, there is a more serious concern in the rivalry between two systems of life and government—the Nazi-Fascism of the Old World and the independent capitalism on our side of the ocean. If we continue our own squabbles the totalitarian group may take advantage of our disagreement and acquire control of Latin-American trade with bad effects on our own economy.

It is vital that citizens and governments of all the American republics understand this situation and face it squarely. They must submerge their own differences if they are to avoid the disastrous economic penetration of Germany.

Whether or not the proposal the administration is expected to make soon to Congress is the best one should be revealed by careful study. At any rate, it is clear to most thoughtful persons that some losses must be taken and some pride must be pocketed in order to make greater pains and guarantee ultimate security.

LOST HAPPINESS

ANOTHER distinguished European has come to the United States. Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright and author, arrived at Hoboken the other day with his wife and a pair of bluebirds. Regarded as one of Europe's greatest living dramatists, the 77-year-old man comes as a refugee, troubled in spirit, and very nearly penniless.

"All I have I have with me," he told newspapermen. "I am stunned, and yet I am surprised at the ease with which I accept all this. Yet nothing can be done. All is done. You can't think. What has happened is catastrophic. All you can do is wait. You must wait for history to clarify itself."

Maeterlinck's money is in a bank in Brussels in a land now occupied and dominated by Nazi Germans. His home and personal belongings are at Nice, where he has lived in recent years, and where now Nazi Germans and Fascist Italians are in possession.

Maeterlinck hopes to begin over, to resume writing and to live on royalties from his most famous play, "The Bluebird." Happiness for him, if there is any in store for him now, will be found not at home, as that play taught, but in an alien land.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

FROM THE minute of the news' arrival in this country it was evident that official Washington had no notion of voicing any objection to the British navy's attacks on French war vessels to prevent them from falling into German hands.

For one thing, all executive and congressional comment was to the purport that the situation, thus far, is none of Uncle Sam's business. The fighting occurred nowhere in our neighborhood.

Britain's friends among our public men are outspoken in their expressions to the effect that the English did exactly the right thing, but they say so only personally. They're willing to be quoted, but opposed to having our government take any position as to the case's merits. Our naval experts, as everybody knows, have been desperately worried all along lest Germany and Italy get possession of France's sea strength in addition to their own. Naturally these authorities, very jittery at the threat of a big growth of Nazi-Fascist power in the Atlantic, while we're so weak in it, are delighted at the British navy's discounting of the peril, until we can be prepared to deal with it effectively on our own western hemisphere account. Even our isolationists can't see any particular reason for Washington to concern itself in hostilities off the coast of Algeria.

One hears this tone of comment all the way from Capitol Hill down through the various departments and into the White House. And from the chat wired in from the sticks, I judge it's the general reaction throughout the country.

NOT 100 PERCENT SATISFACTORY
Yet there's nothing about this war that doesn't, somehow, hint at American complications.

It was to be expected that France would appeal to President Roosevelt to "exert his influence" on Britain to cease its attacks, "contrary to international law," upon Gallie war craft. It also was to have been expected that Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini would blame Uncle Samuel for "indorsing," by diplomatic silence, "British naval activities off Oran and Casablanca."

These howls didn't matter as much. All the state department had to do was to ignore them, on the ground that that part of the world is none of our funeral.

Paraphrasing: (We HAVE made some semi-official remarks to the effect that we regarded as perfectly awful several of the things that Herr Hitler and Comrade Stalin have been doing recently. However, that's what we DID think about Herr Hitler's and Comrade Sta-

FARLEY'S FUTURE MYSTERY

CHICAGO—For the inner Democratic politicians the big question mark overhanging the convention has not been the ticket. That was settled for them last week when Roosevelt gave the nod on the third term. To the insiders, from that moment, the nomination became academic.

But simultaneously there plunked into the fore another mystery that has had both New Deal and regular chieftains going in circles ever since. This is the question, WHAT is Jim Farley going to do?

Can he be persuaded to remain as National Chairman, and manage a campaign which even the most enthusiastic Administrationites admit is going to be very tough? Or will he step out and leave a big gaping hole that will be extremely difficult to fill?

Only one man knows the answer—Farley, like Roosevelt, silent for two and a half years on the third term question, big, genial Jim has taken no one into his confidence.

You can get both a yes and no answer from his most intimate associates. Some are sure he has made up his mind to quit; others that he can yet be talked into managing the campaign.

One widespread story is that he told the President at their Hyde Park conference that Roosevelt would have to find himself another National Chairman if he ran again. Yet, Harry Hopkins, the personal White House emissary here, privately has expressed the steadfast belief that Farley "will be with us."

TWO CERTAINTIES

Two things are certain: One, that all hands are extremely anxious to have Jim direct the campaign; two, that strongly as he disapproves of the President running again, Farley will not "take a walk."

He may wash his hands of Roosevelt politics, but he won't bolt the party. Jim is an organization Democrat and regularity is a cardinal principle of his political faith.

Also it is certain that if Jim is brought around it will be only with the greatest reluctance and after the hardest kind of pulling. He feels his grievances very deeply, and arrangements he already has made for re-entering business would have to be revised. Jim has agreed to take over the New York Yankees September 1.

Obviously enjoying the mystery over what he will do, Jim laughingly meets all questions with a counter-query: "What do you think?"

FRANK WALKER

If Farley does retire, his most likely successor is Frank Walker, lawyer, head of a chain of movie theatres, head of the Roosevelt Library Foundation in Hyde Park, and an old personal friend of both the President and Farley.

Friendly, quiet-mannered and retiring, Walker doesn't want the job, either. It scares him. He has been one of the most active people here in exerting pressure on Farley to remain. But if Roosevelt insists, Walker will respond. He is devoted

Why Blondes Get Freckles

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Will vinegar or olive oil on the skin hasten a quick tan and prevent peeling?

● NOTHING will hasten tanning. Tanning is the mobilization of the pigment producing cells of the body reacting evenly to the stimulus of light. The brunettes have more pigment than the blondes and therefore tan quicker and more painlessly. Blondes have less pigment and tan unevenly—freckles, and some blondes have no pigment at all to speak of, and burn and peel and redden and suffer over and over again. There is no way to change these fundamental differences in skins: the pigmentless blondes should be protected from sunlight if they are to avoid reaction—and sometimes severe illnesses result from sunburn. Vinegar evaporates in the sunlight and has no effect on tanning or peeling. Any non-volatile oil interferes to some extent with the absorption of light and therefore protects against sunburn and subsequent peeling. An oil with some dark pigment may filter light sufficiently to make tanning a slower and more even process, avoiding the unpleasant preliminary stage of burning.

Sensitivity to sunlight exists. It takes two forms. In one, hives reactions—itching and swelling occur at the point of contact. This comes on immediately and lasts a short time. In the other, there is itching, redness, secretion and scaling: it is a delayed reaction, becomes more pronounced the second day and lasts a week. Both types can be prevented with ultraviolet rays in doses just short of the amount that produces a reaction.

Is myopia due to a vitamin deficient diet? This suggestion would seem to cause us to revise many of our present ideas about visual defects, but the evidence is reviewed with conviction by an experienced oculist of Kansas City, Dr. Hugh Miller. It is certainly not impossible because we know vitamin deficiency causes organic changes in the eye, particularly in the connective tissue which is the part involved in short-sightedness and astigmatism.

In questioning a large number of patients who had myopic visual defects, about their lifelong dietary habits, Dr. Miller found that fat was avoided by them, beginning in childhood and continuing into adult life. Vitamins A and D are fat soluble and Vitamin A is known to have effects on the eye, especially in forming the hard sclerotic parts of the eye. The Japanese are not meat eaters, which means fat eaters. Rice and soy beans are their staples, and it is estimated that one and a half pounds of meat to the individual annually is the average consumption of meat in Japan.

"Our greatest difficulty," said a Japanese flight-surgeon, "in getting pilots is neither mental nor emotional, but defective vision." Animal experiments show that when fed on Vitamin-A-free diet, rats lose the normal contour of their corneas, and regain the normal contour when Vitamin A is added to the diet.

Answer—Calcium can be taken in the form of calcium carbonate, a harmless powder. The food which contains most calcium is milk. Most hard waters contain calcium.

SYNOPSIS

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York model agency, starts to rebuild her romance with RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "gone his way to fame on a trumpet," but SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile, ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart, CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

YESTERDAY: Caroline tells Linda that Terry has been paying but slight attention to her for the last month, being entirely taken up with Mina Nevins, for whom he is doing public relations work. Linda meets Rob, who is going on Sarah's yacht party also, and as she sits at a table she sees Mina getting up from a table nearby.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

LINDA did not turn her head as Rob mentioned the fact that Mina Nevins was leaving the room in which they were listening to Spanish warblers and sipping drinks. But as the actress passed she glanced straight at Rob. Her eyes held no flicker of recognition. They were cold, so cold they were dead and frightening, Linda told herself.

"An act," Rob said, when the haunting, illusive perfume that trailed her had blown away. "By the way, what is that stuff? Sarah uses it, too. I don't like it."

Outside the club he bought three gardenias from a flower woman and Linda pinned them against the black neck of her frock. His car was waiting and Linda observed its long, strong lines.

"New?" she asked, seating herself luxuriously.

"I needed one, with summer coming. This upstate job keeps me commuting between two places. We're trying to build a bridge where a bridge hasn't any right to be. But it's going through. Maybe you'll use it some day."

Maybe she would. Maybe she and Ronald would own a car and go down the long, white roads of the land.

"Tell me when Billie Anne comes, and let me take her to lunch," she offered. "Is she pretty?"

"I think so, but I'm prejudiced." He pulled out his wallet and extracted a few pictures from it.

"She's the one with the tumbled hair and the big eyes. The other girls with her are my sisters."

Far up the river road the Washington bridge hung in the sky like a slim, silver arc. An early start slipped through the sky and trembled just above it. The world was still. No sounds, no voices, no laughter.

Linda had forgotten that one night Rob had kissed her. The memory had not come back after the first few days. But now it returned, poignant and real, and suddenly she didn't want this girl with the flying hair and the laughing eyes to come too soon. She knew she was being ridiculous. She loved Ronald. But she was afraid—

As the car glided the miles to the yacht club where the boat waited she tried to think fairly. Ronnie loved her and she loved him. But she needed proof of her own desirability to help her understand that Ronnie cared. But why? Ronald leaned against her love, never doubting. Why couldn't she have the same faith?

Not because she cared, but in order to fill the spaces of silence with words, she said: "Do you like Billie Anne a lot, Rob?"

He smiled a second before answering. "She does nicely. And I've had to look after her so much, you see."

Then she forgot about the girl whose picture was in Rob's wallet, for they were at the yacht club and attendants were hurrying to gather their luggage and take them to the wharf where a small boat would convey them to the yacht that waited for them.

Sounds of laughter and music came from it as the ferry chugged across the water. More white-coated attendants were on hand to receive the newcomers and escort them to their cabins. Linda sat down and drew a deep breath when she reached hers. Its ivory and blue satin furnishings were finer than those of any cabin on any ocean liner she had seen. Pale pink roses nodded in crystal vases and a small radio was sending a gentle stream of music into the room. Before she had finished dressing Linda heard the motors turning and caught the rhythmic vibration of a ship in motion. They were going, which meant that everyone, including Ronald, was on board.

She glanced out of a porthole and saw the lighted clubhouse, the boats that waited at anchor drifting past. She dressed quickly in a pale green frock, stepped into silver sandals, and fastened a wide silver girdle at her waist. She did not think she would need a wrap, but she picked up the gray-green cape whose color was as varied as a sea in storm and carried it with her.

The boat was going fast. Much faster than a boat usually went when it had nothing more important to do than cruise around on home waters for a week-end, she thought as she moved toward the lounge. Apparently the party was in full swing. Voices and laughter rose and fell with the waves.

Sarah came to meet her. For a brief moment Linda acknowledged Sarah's beauty. There were yards, even miles, of silver-threaded chiffon in the gown she wore. Linda became aware that her green frock had been reduced drastically and even at that she had been compelled to have it dry cleaned before she could wear it. Still, it had been beautiful and expensive once and it could join the party bravely tonight.

"You did come," Sarah said softly. "I was afraid you wouldn't. I was quite badly to you once, you know. I'm sorry." She smiled, her eyes meeting Linda's squarely. "I've forgotten all about that night and I think I had left my manners at home, too. I'm glad you asked me to come on the party."

Linda spoke the words slowly, her eyes probing the other girl's. Sarah was arrogant and proud and defiant. Unless she had changed very much she was merely attempting a role for a purpose tonight. That Linda knew.

Now Sarah put her firm white hand on Linda's arm and turned her toward Ronald. "There he is over there, scared to death for fear a beautiful model upset the works at your office and you didn't get here. Better put his mind at ease."

All through the evening Linda had a sense of adventure. All anchors were lifted. The moorings were gone. But the tall white boat, banners flying and lights shining, was winging its way swiftly to anywhere.

Once she was near Rob when Mina passed. He smiled and mentioned having seen her that afternoon. Mina's eyes contracted. "But I haven't been in that place for days," she said.

"Let's stroll," Rob said, and led her out on deck. "Do you know, her sea lions couldn't have dragged me from this slinding in spite of Sarah and Billie Anne's friendship if it hadn't been that you were coming and Mina had accepted? I'm afraid for you, truthfully speaking. Notice the secrecy about her now?"

Linda nodded. "But she's using Terry as though he were a marionette; something on a string she pulls."

"That's just what she's doing, but he can't get wise. He's a grand fellow, too. But stay out of Mina's way, won't you? By the way, I'm in the cabin across the way from you, so if you feel afraid, call out."

Linda nodded, scarcely hearing. She was thinking that it, the excitement of seeing Ronald and being with him she had overlooked the quality of danger which the place would hold for her as long as Mina shared it.

Ronald came for her just then, and they stood watching the wake of white foam that trailed the ship. He pulled the girl's arm through his and covered her hand with warm fingers.

The boat went on serenely, stars swung down to dance on the water, and the waves grew wilder.

"Where are we going?" Linda asked, her head resting against Ronald's hard shoulder.

"To an island toward the south which belongs partly to the Markleys," he answered. "We're having breakfast there Sunday morning, then we'll come home a shorter way. Sarah says ever, cruise should have one port of call, if it's only a place to roast potatoes and fry bacon."

"It's heavenly to be on a boat where nothing can happen," Linda murmured, smiling into the darkness. At the moment she believed her words. She was on a boat—and nothing could happen.

NEW WORLD'S BIG PROBLEMS

THERE are produced in South America great quantities of agricultural products which compete in world market with similar products of North America. There have long been bitter antagonisms in the marketing of beaves, wheat and cotton of the two temperate zones of this hemisphere.

Today, however, there is a more serious concern in the rivalry between two systems of life and government—the Nazi-Fascism of the Old World and the independent capitalism on our side of the ocean. If we continue our own squabbles the totalitarian group may take advantage of our disagreement and acquire control of Latin-American trade with bad effects on our own economy.

It is vital that citizens and governments of all the American republics understand this situation and face it squarely. They must submerge their own differences if they are to avoid the disastrous economic penetration of Germany.

Whether or not the proposal the administration is expected to make soon to Congress is the best one should be revealed by careful study. At any rate, it is clear to most thoughtful persons that some losses must be taken and some pride must be pocketed in order to make greater pains and guarantee ultimate security.

LOST HAPPINESS

ANOTHER distinguished European has come to the United States. Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright and author, arrived at Hoboken the other day with his wife and a pair of bluebirds. Regarded as one of Europe's greatest living dramatists, the 77-year-old man comes as a refugee, troubled in spirit, and very nearly penniless.

"All I have I have with me," he told newspapermen. "I am stunned, and yet I am surprised at the ease with which I accept all this. Yet nothing can be done. All is done. You can't think. What has happened is catastrophic. All you can do is wait. You must wait for history to clarify itself."

Maeterlinck's money is in a bank in Brussels in a land now occupied and dominated by Nazi Germans. His home and personal belongings are at Nice, where he has lived in recent years, and where now Nazi Germans and Fascist Italians are in possession.

Maeterlinck hopes to begin over, to resume writing and to live on royalties from his most famous play, "The Bluebird." Happiness for him, if there is any in store for him now, will be found not at home, as that play taught, but in an alien land.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

FROM THE minute of the news' arrival in this country it was evident that official Washington had no notion of voicing any objection to the British navy's attacks on French war vessels to prevent them from falling into German hands.

For one thing, all executive and congressional comment was to the purport that the situation, thus far, is none of Uncle Sam's business. The fighting occurred nowhere in our neighborhood.

Britain's friends among our public men are outspoken in their expressions to the effect that the English did exactly the right thing, but they say so only personally. They're willing to be quoted, but opposed to having our government take any position as to the case's merits. Our naval experts, as everybody knows, have been desperately worried all along lest Germany and Italy get possession of France's sea strength in addition to their own. Naturally these authorities, very jittery at the threat of a big growth of Nazi-Fascist power in the Atlantic, while we're so weak in it, are delighted at the British navy's discounting of the peril, until we can be prepared to deal with it effectively on our own western hemisphere account. Even our isolationists can't see any particular reason for Washington to concern itself in hostilities off the coast of Algeria. One hears this tone of comment all the way from Capitol Hill down through the various departments and into the White House. And from the chat wired in from the sticks, I judge it's the general reaction throughout the country.

NOT 100 PERCENT SATISFACTORY

Yet there's nothing about this war that doesn't, somehow, hint at American complications.

It was to be expected that France would appeal to President Roosevelt to "exert his influence" on Britain to cease its attacks, "contrary to international law," upon Gallic war craft. It also was to have been expected that Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini would blame Uncle Samuel for "indorsing" by diplomatic silence, British naval activities off Oran and Casablanca.

These howls didn't matter as much. All the state department had to do was to ignore them, on the ground that that part of the world is none of our funeral.

Paraphrasing: (WE HAVE made some semi-official remarks to the effect that we regarded as perfectly awful several of the things that Herr Hitler and Comrade Stalin have been doing recently. However, that's what we DID think about Herr Hitler's and Comrade Sta-

FARLEY'S FUTURE MYSTERY

CHICAGO—For the inner Democratic politicians the big question mark overhanging the convention has not been the ticket. That was settled for them last week when Roosevelt gave the nod on the third term. To the insiders, from that moment, the nomination became academic. But simultaneously there plunked into the fore another mystery that has had both New Deal and regular chieftains going in circles ever since. This is the question, WHAT is Jim Farley going to do?

Can he be persuaded to remain as National Chairman, and manage a campaign which even the most enthusiastic Administrationites admit is going to be very tough? Or will he step out and leave a big gaping hole that will be extremely difficult to fill?

Only one man knows the answer—Farley, like Roosevelt, silent for two and a half years on the third term question, big, genial Jim has taken no one into his confidence.

You can get both a yes and no answer from his most intimate associates. Some are sure he has made up his mind to quit; others that he can yet be talked into managing the campaign.

One widespread story is that he told the President at their Hyde Park conference that Roosevelt would have to find himself another National Chairman if he ran again. Yet, Harry Hopkins, the personal White House emissary here, privately has expressed the steadfast belief that Farley "will be with us."

TWO CERTAINTIES

Two things are certain: One, that all hands are extremely anxious to have Jim direct the campaign; two, that strongly as he disapproves of the President running again, Farley will not "take a walk."

He may wash his hands of Roosevelt politics, but he won't bolt the party. Jim is an organization Democrat and regularity is a cardinal principle of his political faith.

Also it is certain that if Jim is brought around it will be only with the greatest reluctance and after the hardest kind of pulling. He feels his grievances very deeply, and arrangements he already has made for re-entering business would have to be revised. Jim has agreed to take over the New York Yankees September 1.

Obviously enjoying the mystery over what he will do, Jim laughingly meets all questions with a counter-query: "What do you think?"

FRANK WALKER

If Farley does retire, his most likely successor is Frank Walker, lawyer, head of a chain of movie theatres, head of the Roosevelt Library Foundation in Hyde Park, and an old personal friend of both the President and Farley.

Friendly, quiet-mannered and retiring, Walker doesn't want the job, either. It scares him. He has been one of the most active people here in exerting pressure on Farley to remain. But if Roosevelt insists, Walker will respond. He is devoted

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Will vinegar or olive oil on the skin hasten a quick tan and prevent peeling?

● NOTHING will hasten tanning. Tanning is the mobilization of the pigment producing cells of the body reacting evenly to the stimulus of light. The brunettes have more pigment than the blondes and therefore tan quicker and more painlessly. Blondes have less pigment and tan unevenly—freckles, and some blondes have no pigment at all to speak of, and burn and peel and redden and suffer over and over again. There is no way to change these fundamental differences in skins: the pigmentless blondes should be protected from sunlight if they are to avoid reaction—and some times severe illnesses result from sunburn. Vinegar evaporates in the sunlight and has no effect on tanning or peeling. Any non-volatile oil interferes to some extent with the absorption of light and therefore protects against sunburn and subsequent peeling. An oil with some dark pigment may filter light sufficiently to make tanning a slower and more even process, avoiding the unpleasant preliminary stage of burning. Sensitivity to sunlight exists. It takes two forms. In one, hives reactions—itching and swelling occur at the point of contact. This comes on immediately and lasts a short time. In the other, there is itching, redness, secretion and scaling: it is a delayed reaction, becomes more pronounced the second day and lasts a week. Both types can be prevented with ultraviolet rays in doses just short of the amount that produces a reaction.

Is myopia due to a vitamin deficient diet? This suggestion would seem to cause us to revise many of our present ideas about visual defects, but the evidence is reviewed with conviction by an experienced oculist of Kansas City, Dr. Hugh Miller. It is certainly not impossible because we know vitamin deficiency causes organic changes in the eye, particularly in the connective tissue which is the part involved in short-sightedness and astigmatism.

In questioning a large number of patients who had myopic visual defects, about their lifelong dietary habits, Dr. Miller found that fat was avoided by them, beginning in childhood and continuing into adult life. Vitamins A and D are fat soluble and Vitamin A is known to have effects on the eye, especially in forming the hard sclerotic parts of the eye. The Japanese are not meat eaters, which means fat eaters. Rice and soy beans are their staples, and it is estimated that one and a half pounds of meat to the individual annually is the average consumption of meat in Japan.

"Our greatest difficulty," said a Japanese flight-surgeon, "in getting pilots is neither mental nor emotional, but defective vision." Animal experiments show that when fed on Vitamin-A-free diet, rats lose the normal contour of their corneas, and regain the normal contour when Vitamin A is added to the diet.

Answer—Calcium can be taken in the form of calcium carbonate, a harmless powder. The food which contains most calcium is milk. Most hard waters contain calcium.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but SARAH MARLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart.

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

YESTERDAY: Caroline tells Linda that Terry has been paying but slight attention to her for the last month, being entirely taken up with Mina Nevins, for whom he is doing public relations work. Linda meets Rob, who is going on Sarah's yacht party also, and as they sit at a table they see Mina getting up from a table nearby.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

LINDA did not turn her head as Rob mentioned the fact that Mina Nevins was leaving the room in which they were listening to Spanish warblers and sipping cold drinks. But as the actress passed she glanced straight at Rob. Her eyes held no flicker of recognition. They were cold, so cold they were dead and frightening, Linda told herself.

"An act," Rob said, when the haunting, illusive perfume that trailed her had blown away. "By the way, what is that stuff? Sarah uses it, too. I don't like it."

Outside the club he bought three gardenias from a flower woman and Linda pinned them against the black neck of her frock. His car was waiting and Linda observed its long, strong lines.

"New?" she asked, seating herself luxuriously.

"I needed one, with summer coming. This upstate job keeps me commuting between two places. We're trying to build a bridge where a bridge hasn't any right to be. But it's going through. Maybe you'll use it some day."

Maybe she would. Maybe she and Ronald would own a car and go down the long, white roads of the land.

"Tell me when Billie Anne comes, and let me take her to lunch," she offered. "Is she pretty?"

"I think so, but I'm prejudiced." He pulled out his wallet and extracted a few pictures from it. "She's the one with the tumbled hair and the big eyes. The other girls with her are my sisters."

Far up the river road the Washington bridge hung in the sky like a slim, silver arc. An early start slipped through the sky and trembled just above it. The world was still. No sounds, no voices, no laughter.

Linda had forgotten that one night Rob had kissed her. The memory had not come back after the first few days. But now it returned, poignant and real, and suddenly she didn't want this girl with the flying hair and the laughing eyes to come too soon. She knew she was being ridiculous. She loved Ronald. But she was afraid—

As the car glided the miles to the yacht club where the boat waited she tried to think fairly. Ronnie loved her and she loved him. But she needed proof of her own desirability to help her understand that Ronnie cared. But why? Ronald leaned against her love, never doubting. Why couldn't she have the same faith?

Not because she cared, but in order to fill the spaces of silence with words, she said: "Do you like Billie Anne a lot, Rob?"

He smiled a second before answering. "She does nicely. And I've had to look after her so much, you see."

Then she forgot about the girl whose picture was in Rob's wallet, for they were at the yacht club and attendants were hurrying to gather their luggage and take them to the wharf where a small boat would convey them to the yacht that waited for them.

Sounds of laughter and music came from it as the ferry chugged across the water. More white-coated attendants were on hand to receive the newcomers and escort them to their cabins. Linda sat down and drew a deep breath when she reached hers. Its ivory and blue satin furnishings were finer than those of any cabin on any ocean liner she had seen. Pale pink roses nodded in crystal vases and a small radio was sending a gentle stream of music into the room. Before she had finished dressing Linda heard the rhythmic vibration of a ship in motion. They were going, which must mean that everyone, including Ronald, was on board.

She glanced out of a porthole and saw the lighted clubhouse, the boats that waited at anchor drifting past. She dressed quickly in a pale green frock, stepped into silver sandals, and fastened a wide silver girdle at her waist. She did not think she would need a wrap, but she picked up the gray-green cape whose color was as vivid as a sea in storm and carried it with her.

The boat was going fast. Much faster than a boat usually went when it had nothing more important to do than cruise around on home waters for a week-end, she thought as she moved toward the lounge. Apparently the party was in full swing. Voices and laughter rose and fell with the waves.

Still, it had been beautiful and expensive once and it could join the party bravely tonight.

"You did come," Sarah said softly. "I was afraid you wouldn't. I was quite beastly to you once, you know. I'm sorry." She smiled, her eyes meeting Linda's squarely.

"I've forgotten all about it night and I think I had left manners at home, too. I'm glad I asked me to come on the party."

Linda spoke the words slow her eyes probing the other girl. Sarah was arrogant and proud and defiant. Unless she had changed very much she was merely tempting a role for a purpose night. That Linda knew.

Now Sarah put her firm hand on Linda's arm and turned her toward Ronald. "There he is, over there, scared to death for a beautiful model upset the wot at your office and you didn't here. Better put his mind at ease."

Linda nodded. "But she's up Terry as though he were a marionette; something on a string pulls."

"That's just what she's doing but he can't get wise. He's a fellow, too. But stay out of his way, won't you? By the way, I in the cabin across the way for you, so if you feel afraid, call out."

Second Of Bridge Club Parties Proves Success

Out-of-Town Guests Present Tuesday For Affair

Mrs. John Corbett of Grosse Point, Mich., Mrs. George Connelly of Chagrin Falls, Mrs. Carson Horton, Columbus, and Mrs. White, Chillicothe, were out-of-town guests Tuesday at the second of the series of summer luncheon bridge parties at the Pickaway Country Club.

Playing with even greater enthusiasm than at the first party, 16 members progressed during the games of contract bridge played on the club house porch.

Mrs. Isabelle Stark of Chillicothe, Mrs. Ned Landis of Logan Elm Farm near Elwood, and Mrs. J. D. Phillips, Beverly Road, were awarded the choice favors for scores at the conclusion of the games.

Luncheon was served at 12:30 p. m. at one long table. White roses and silver spun ornaments filled the large silver container in the center of the table, crystal vases of summer garden flowers being at either end. A large bowl of lovely petunias on a side table was an added feature of the decorations.

Mrs. Charles G. Shulze heads the committee responsible for the delightful parties, her assistants including Mrs. J. E. Groom, Mrs. Fred Grant, Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, Mrs. H. P. Folsom and Mrs. D. Adrian Yates.

The third luncheon bridge for members and out-of-town guests will be at the club in two weeks.

Bridge Club Meets

Mrs. Robert Thomas and Mrs. Dwight Weller won the score prizes Tuesday when Miss Virginia Marion was hostess to the members of her bridge club in her home on North Scioto Street.

Two tables of players joined in the games of contract bridge during the evening. Cool beverages were served by the hostess.

For Wednesday, July 17

STRESS and storm, with problems and perplexities dominate on this day according to the lunar and mutual aspects. There may be delays and disappointments, with much concern pertaining to finances. Much wrangling about contracts, writings or legal documents is presaged although the major elements of anxiety may be found in domestic, social or emotional disturbances.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year in which is discretion and complacency may turn woe and regret into gratification and harmony, this especially in the private life, social, domestic and romantic. In such relations there is sign of delays, disappointments and obstacles, with uncertainty and discord about money matters.

A child born on this day may be disposed to impetuosity and outbursts of temperament, although not malicious and unkindly. However, it may keep the household on tenterhooks, unless disciplined in early youth.

Second Of Bridge Club Parties Proves Success

Out-of-Town Guests Present Tuesday For Affair

Mrs. John Corbett of Grosse Point, Mich., Mrs. George Connelly of Chagrin Falls, Mrs. Carson Horton, Columbus, and Mrs. White, Chillicothe, were out of town guests Tuesday at the second of the series of summer luncheon bridge parties at the Pickaway Country Club.

Playing with even greater enthusiasm than at the first party, 26 members progressed during the games of contract bridge played on the club house porch.

Mrs. Isabelle Stark of Chillicothe, Mrs. Ned Landis of Logan Elm Farm near Elmwood, and Mrs. D. Phillips, Beverly Road, were awarded the choice favors for scores at the conclusion of the games.

Luncheon was served at 12:30 p. m. at one long table. White roses and silver spun ornaments filled the large silver container in the center of the table, crystal vases of summer garden flowers being at either end. A large bowl of lovely petunias on a side table was an added feature of the decorations.

Mrs. Charles G. Shulze heads the committee responsible for the delightful parties, her assistants including Mrs. J. E. Groom, Mrs. Fred Grant, Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, Mrs. H. P. Folsom and Mrs. D. Adrian Yates.

The third luncheon bridge for members and out-of-town guests will be at the club in two weeks.

RADIO FOR PEDESTRIANS
NEW YORK—After many years of experimentation, Radio Corp. of America has announced the development of a "personal radio," a self-contained receiving set weighing only four pounds. It is less than nine inches long, four inches wide and three inches deep. The set is equipped with a strap and may be slung over the shoulder.

Salmon is a saltwater fish, but it travels up freshwater rivers to lay its eggs, because at spawning time the female's weight is so increased that she has difficulty in remaining under the surface of salt water because of its buoyancy.

OHIO HORSE HITS NEW TRACK MARK AT GOSHEN, N. Y.

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 17—A new world mark for a gelding over a half mile track was inscribed in the trotting records today following the performance of Milestone, 3-year-old son of Volomite, owned by J. A. Neville, of Delaware, Ohio in winning the $2,000 three-year-old trot in two straight heats at the second day of the Goshen Grand Circuit meeting.
Milestone was timed at 2:05½ in the second heat in winning the fastest mile of the year, breaking the previous mark of 2:06½, held by Uncle Wall. He trotted the first in 2:07½.

Willie Hope, 4-year-old stallion, took the Trotting Club stake in two heats from a field of six. Personally won the classified trot likewise in two straight heats and Stone Ridge Direct captured the Trotting Club pace, winning two of the four heats.

LOCAL SOFTBALL OUTFIT TOPS CHILLICOTHE FOE

Glitt's softball team, first half champion in the Chillicothe league, was back in the winning column Wednesday after bumping the Chillicothe Barretts, 10-6. Tuesday evening. The local team smacked Meeker, big Chillicothe pitcher, for 10 solid safeties, getting five runs in the first three innings and clinching the ball game with four more in the fifth.

Pug Fowler pitched for the winners and walked nine batters while fanning three.

Apparently No Outfit Wants American Title

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, July 17—If Yankee and Red Sox fans haven't abandoned hope for their favorites, it is only because neither the Tigers nor Indians have shown the consistent drive expected of a prospective pennant winner.

Here's an American League flag simply begging for some team to step up and take it. But the four first division outfits continue to flounder as if they wanted no part of the fat World Series check in the fall.

The Yanks bowed yesterday, 5-1, to the six-hit pitching of Johnny Rigney of the White Sox; the Tigers dropped their series to the Athletics when George Caster outpitched Fred Hutchinson for a 3-1 decision; and the Senators made a clean sweep of their series with the Indians by crushing the Clevelanders, 11-8.

The Indians were leading 7-2 going into the last half of the sixth when the aroused Senators fell on some inept pitching for seven runs and the ball game. The Red Sox and Browns were idle.

While the Reds and the Phils were being rained out yesterday, the Dodgers were being knocked off by the Pirates, 5 to 3. The Dodgers gave Tex Carleton a 3-run lead, but he couldn't hold it.

When Olsen pitched a six-hit 2-0 shut-out over the slipping Giants. Harry Gumbert gave the Cubs only four hits, but one of these was Phil Cavaretta's game-winning hit with the bags fully tenanted and this same agile gentleman saved the shutout with a great play when the Giants filled house.

The Cardinals said it with homers to beat the Bees, 4-3. Two homers by Enos Slaughter and Johnny Mize's No. 24 gave Lefty Shoun the decision over Sailor Bill Posedel.

BRECHEN TO GET CALL AGAINST KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, July 17—Clever Harry Brechen, ace southpaw twirler of the Columbus Red Birds, will get the starting bid tonight as the American Association All-stars battle the Kansas City Blues in the annual all-league classic at Ruppert stadium.

Ernie Bonham, will start for the first place Blues. The All-Stars won last year's game from the Kansas City, 9-7.

FIGHTER COLLAPSES

NEW YORK, July 17—Heart failure was blamed by officials today for the death of Pete Asero, 20, a welterweight, who suddenly collapsed and died while boxing Pete Muscamera in the fourth round of a scheduled six-round bout. Physicians worked over him a half hour in the ring but failed to revive him.

CHALLENGED LIKED

BOSTON, July 17—Challendon, W. L. Brann's 1939 three-year-old handicap king, was an even money favorite with top weight of 130 pounds to win the classic $50,000 added Massachusetts handicap to be run at Suffolk Downs late today.

2-1 ODDS FAVOR HENRY TO TAKE JENKINS TONIGHT

Most Gotham Fight Fans Look For Knock Out In Ring Joust

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, July 17—When knockerout meets knockerout it is a virtual certainty that some one will be carried away feet first—

With almost fantastic betting odds favoring the whirlwind aggressiveness of Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong, Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins tonight will attempt to bring the little Negro down with his long-range, two-fisted pot shot and with that arrange for his meagre following a major betting coup, in the scheduled 12-round "natural" before 30,000 or more at the Polo Grounds. Neither principal's title will be involved.

The encounter, long-regarded as potentially one of the greatest displays of punching that could be arranged, finds Armstrong a 2 to 1 favorite to win and even money to stop Jenkins' great streak via knockout. The odds were 3 to 1 against Jenkins stopping Armstrong.

Jenkins Hot

All this in the face of the fact that the poetry-writing former triple-crown wearer undoubtedly has slipped in recent months, whereas Jenkins is sizzling hot with eight knockouts in a row, including the last one, which gave him Lou Ambers' lightweight championship.

The big question centers around whether Armstrong has gone back enough to blow this one to the raw-boned former U. S. cavalry man from the Rio Grande. Few will believe that he has until they see it, most of the dissenters being Jenkins' fellow-Texans who have arrived to watch him go against his second straight champion.

In favor of Armstrong, the fight mob says, is his persistent attack and the fiery pace that he sets. They say Jenkins will have to catch him early, and thus take advantage of Armstrong's slow starting. If Jenkins blows his opening bid, they say, he won't get another chance, for round by round he will be worn down by the barrage that will be poured on him until finally he must drop.

OHIO HORSE HITS NEW TRACK MARK AT GOSHEN, N. Y.

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 17—A new world mark for a gelding over a half mile track was inscribed in the trotting records today following the performance of Milestone, 3-year-old son of Volomite, owned by J. A. Neville, of Delaware, Ohio in winning the $2,000 three-year-old trot in two straight heats at the second day of the Goshen Grand Circuit meeting.

Milestone was timed at 2:05½ in the second heat in winning the fastest mile of the year, breaking the previous mark of 2:06½, laid by Uncle Wall. He trotted the first in 2:07½.

Willie Hope, 4-year-old stallion, took the Trotting Club stake in two heats from a field of six. Personally in the classified trot likewise in two straight heats and Stone Ridge Direct captured the Trotting Club pace, winning two of the four heats.

LOCAL SOFTBALL OUTFIT TOPS CHILLICOTHE FOE

Glitt's softball team, first half champion in the Chillicothe league, was back in the winning column Wednesday after bumping the Chillicothe Barrett's, 10-6, Tuesday evening. The local team smacked Meeker, big Chillicothe pitcher, for 10 solid safeties, getting five runs in the first three innings and clinching the ball game with four more in the fifth.

Pug Fowler pitched for the winners and walked nine batters while fanning three.

Apparently No Outfit Wants American Title

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, July 17—If Yankee and Red Sox fans haven't abandoned hope for their favorites, it is only because neither the Tigers nor Indians have shown the consistent drive expected of a prospective pennant winner.

Here's an American League flag simply begging for some team to step up and take it. But the four first division outfits continue to flounder as if they wanted no part of the fat World Series check in the fall.

The Yanks bowed yesterday, 5-1, to the six-hit pitching of Johnny Rigney of the White Sox; the Tigers dropped their series to the Athletics when George Caster outpitched Fred Hutchinson for a 3-1 decision; and the Senators made a clean sweep of their series with the Indians by crushing the Clevelanders, 11-8.

The Indians were leading 7-2 going into the last half of the sixth when the aroused Senators fell on some inept pitching for seven runs and the ball game. The Red Sox and Browns were idle. While the Reds and the Phils were being rained out yesterday, the Dodgers were being knocked off by the Pirates, 5 to 3. The Dodgers gave Tex Carleton a 3-run lead, but he couldn't hold it.

When Olsen pitched a six-hit 2-0 shut-out over the slipping Giants, Harry Gumbert gave the Cubs only four hits, but one of these was Phil Cavaretta's game-winning hit with the bags fully tenanted and this same agile gentleman saved the shutout with a great play when the Giants filled house.

The Cardinals said it with homers to beat the Bees, 4-3. Two homers by Enos Slaughter and Johnny Mize's No. 24 gave Lefty Shoun the decision over Sailor Bill Posedel.

BRECHEN TO GET CALL AGAINST KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, July 17—Clever Harry Brechen, ace southpaw twirler of the Columbus Red Birds, will get the starting bid tonight as the American Association All-stars battle the Kansas City Blues in the annual all-league classic at Ruppert stadium.

Ernie Bonham will start for the first place Blues. The All-Stars won last year's game from the Kansas City, 9-7.

FIGHTER COLLAPSES

NEW YORK, July 17—Heart failure was blamed by officials today for the death of Pete Asero, 20, a welterweight, who suddenly collapsed and died while boxing Pete Muscarena in the fourth round of a scheduled six-round bout. Physicians worked over him a half hour in the ring but failed to revive him.

CHALLENGER LIKED

BOSTON, July 17—Challenger, W. L. Brann's 1939 three-year-old handicap king, was an even money favorite with top weight of 130 pounds to win the classic $50,000 added Massachusetts handicap to be run at Suffolk Downs late today.

2-1 ODDS FAVOR HENRY TO TAKE JENKINS TONIGHT

Most Gotham Fight Fans Look For Knock Out In Ring Joust

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, July 17—When knockerout meets knockerout it is a virtual certainty that some one will be carried away feet first.

With almost fantastic betting odds favoring the whirlwind aggressiveness of Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong, Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins tonight will attempt to bring the little Negro down with his long-range, two-fisted pot shot and with that arrange for his meagre following a major betting coup, in the scheduled 12-round "natural" before 30,000 or more at the Polo Grounds. Neither principal's title will be involved.

The encounter, long-regarded as potentially one of the greatest displays of punching that could be arranged, finds Armstrong a 2 to 1 favorite to win and even money to stop Jenkins' great streak via knockout. The odds were 3 to 1 against Jenkins stopping Armstrong.

FIFTY PICKAWAY 4-H CLUB MEMBERS ENROLL FOR ANNUAL CAMP TRIP

REGISTRATIONS FOR JUNIORS TO START MONDAY

Five Counties Cooperating In Trips To Grounds South Of Adelphi

BLAIR IS ON COMMITTEE

Senior Group Scheduled To Leave July 29; Program Being Arranged

Final arrangements for fifty Pickaway County 4-H Club members to attend the annual 4-H camp at the Ross-Hocking camp grounds, eight miles south of Adelphi, were being made Wednesday by Agricultural Agent F. K. Blair.

Registration for the Junior Camp, including boys and girls between 10 and 13 years old, will begin Monday, with a varied program including handicraft, photography, nature study, first aid, swimming and games scheduled for the remainder of the week.

The Senior Camp is scheduled to open July 29 and will continue to August 3. Members of the executive committee include F. K. Blair, Pickaway County; Ross Wright, Athens County; Mabel Westervelt, Fairfield County; James Smoot, Hocking County, and Don Rihl, Ross County.

Mrs. J. A. McEwen, Lancaster, will lead the singing and vesper services at the senior camp. Don Rihl will conduct the campfire meetings and Fred C. Pierson of Columbus will be in charge of swimming.

Approximately 125 4-H club members, representing Ross, Hocking, Athens, Fairfield, and Pickaway Counties, will attend either the junior or the senior camps.

Applications to the camps are still being received by Mr. Blair, who reported Wednesday that the following had already registered for the Junior camp: John Noecker, Barbara Courtwright, Billy Courtright, Max Luckhart, Dwight Rector, Jr., Donna Mae Purcell, John M. Brinker, Joan Brinker, Donna A. May, Elsiean Cromley, Marilyn Briggs, Dane Mounts, Raymond Mounts Jr., Floridene Snyder, Donald Strous, Billy Speakman, Richard Murray Heath, Betty Davis, Virginia Griffith and June Ann Davy.

Applications received for the senior camp include Ralph DeLay, Lee Tracy, Max Neal, John Spenser, William Mitchell, Marvin Johnston, Earl E. Liff, Virginia Ater, Pearl Melvin, Glenn Haughn, Lawrence Neff, Philip Reichelderfer, Fred Call, Jr., Robert Strous, Marshall B. Cupp, Roger May, Helen Bowman, Mary Kathryn Bowman, Robert Lee McKinley, Joan Lois Tosca and Harold Johnson.

SHEETS FUNERAL RITES TO BE THURSDAY AT 3

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 3 p. m. in the Albaugh Co. Chapel for Mrs. Martha Sheets, 90, who died Tuesday at midnight at the home of a son, Clarence, in Akron, O. The Rev. A. N. Gruesser will officiate, with burial in Forest Cemetery. Her grandsons will act as pall bearers.

Mrs. Sheets was born in Union Township, Ross County, March 25, 1850, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm. Her husband, Chapman Sheets, died January 12, 1928.

Surviving are the following children: Harry chief of police in Portsmouth; Clarence, Akron; Mrs. Albert Dodd, Columbus; John, Akron; and Mrs. Margaret Brobst, Erie, Pa.

No Doubt About His Stand

THE huge picture of President Roosevelt beside him reveals the sympathies of Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, head of the largest delegation to the Democratic national convention in Chicago.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

to the President and will do anything he asks.

If Walker becomes National Chairman, as lieutenants he is pretty certain to draft Mayor Ed Kelly of Chicago and Edward J. Flynn, Bronx leader and New York Secretary of State. Next to Farley, these two are the most experienced executives in the Democratic organization. Either would be a sure choice for the chairmanship but for their local machine backgrounds.

CHICAGO CHAFF

The Utah and Florida delegations are divided 50-50 between men and women—the only such at any major convention . . . Dr. Francis Townsend, old-age czar, attempted to put the bee on Democratic platform-makers and candidates as he did at Philadelphia, but with no better luck. The only one to give him a tumble was McNutt, whom Townsend is now boosting for vice president . . . Chief pluggers for the "little business plank" in the platform, promising loans and protection against big business, were Senator James Mead of New York; Chairman Adolph Sabath of the House Rules Committee; Dr. John F. Carruthers, head of the National Small Business Research Bureau; and James G. Daly, President of the National Small Businessmen's Association.

ROOSEVELT CIO

Though John L. Lewis may be rumbling anti-third term blasts and secretly conjuring up a third party movement, a score of the most potent leaders in the CIO are playing a very important role at this Roosevelt convention.

They are doing it both as CIO chiefs with an official CIO headquarters, and as delegates from six states (Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, California and Washington). Chief among them are Phil Murray, quiet, astute CIO vice president; Tom Kennedy, United Mine Workers vice president; John Owen, head of the Ohio CIO; and Sam Caddy, president of the Kentucky United Mine Workers.

It was Murray, Kennedy and Owen who quietly arranged that third-term endorsement by the United Auto Workers last week, on the eve of the convention—a direct slap at Lewis, who the week before had told the Townsend convention Roosevelt would be "ignominiously defeated" if he ran again.

Also it was Murray who, in direct contrast to Lewis' anti-top Roosevelt fireworks at the GOP convention, denounced Willie at the platform committee hearings as an enemy of unions and the National Labor Relations Board.

All this, like Lewis' performance in Philadelphia, was no accident. It was carefully arranged in advance for the express purpose of repudiating Lewis' attitude.

NOTE:—Either Murray or Kennedy is certain to be one of the co-chairmen of the Democratic Labor Campaign Committee.

CONVENTION MERRY-GO-ROUND

Strange pre-convention visitor to the National Committee headquarters here was John Raskob, chairman from 1928 to 1932 and with Al Smith a bolter in 1936. Raskob spent a half-hour conferring privately with Farley . . . Two most photographed women at the convention are Evie Robert, photogenic wife of the secretary of the National Committee, and stately, white-haired Mrs. Mack, National Committeewoman from the Virgin Islands . . . Two other unusual visitors are Mrs. Alice Longworth and Forrest Davis, goateed newsmen, both active in the nearly successful GOP presidential campaign of Senator Taft . . . Pride of Jim Farley at the convention is his attractive 15-year-old daughter Ann, who acts as one of his secretaries and takes her duties very seriously . . . No wonder one of the first things the National committee did was to enact a rule limiting the number of delegates at future Democratic conventions. This one has 1,094 votes and 1,896 delegates. Three states sent veritable armies of delegates, each with a minute fraction of a vote. Texas, with 46 votes, sent 135 delegates; Mississippi, with 18 votes, has 108 delegates; and Montana, with six votes, has 26 delegates. One Mississippi district with two votes elected 58 delegates . . . There wasn't enough room for the alternates on the convention floor and some had to be seated in the visitors' galleries. Going to a convention is apparently a big treat for the Democratic boys and girls.

PWA COLLEGE BUILDING

LOGAN, Utah—The $54,500 military science building at Utah State Agricultural College, constructed as a PWA project, is nearing completion. Appropriation for the building was made less than a year ago when the War Department indicated need for a building to house coast artillery weapons at the college.

OFFICERS HUNT TWO FUGITIVES

U. S. Reformatory Prisoners Escape; One Serving For Kidnaping

Pickaway County officers and Circleville police continued to be on the lookout Wednesday for two inmates from the Federal Reformatory in Chillicothe, who escaped some time Tuesday.

Dr. F. Lovell Bixby, warden of the institution, said that the escape of the two fugitives, Albert Newsome Moore, 19, and Vincent S. Hill, 20, was noted when a detail on which they had been working, was assembled to return to the reformatory at noon.

Just how the two escaped is not known. One report stated that the men had boarded a westbound Baltimore and Ohio freight train, but Dr. Bixby said that the report had not been confirmed.

In a special notice to Circleville police and the Pickaway County Sheriff, Moore was described as being 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 142 pounds. He has blue eyes and light brown hair, and a scar on his forehead. He was sentenced May 12, 1939 from Richmond, Virginia to serve two years for kidnaping.

Hill was described as being 5 feet, 8 inches tall, weighing 151 pounds, with blue eyes and brown hair. He was sentenced on April 18, 1939 from Fort DeRusse, Hawaii, by a military court martial to serve two years for assault and larceny.

At the time of their escape, the two were wearing khaki shirts and trousers and tan shoes.

A reward of $50, subject to conditions of the Bureau of Prison regulations, will be paid for information, assistance or capture of the escaped prisoners.

STOUTSVILLE TO HAVE ITS SCHOOL REUNION

George J. Gearhart, president of the Stoutsville school reunion association, has appointed an executive committee to arrange the program for the third annual event to be held in August at the Stoutsville school auditorium.

Members of the committee are Rev. and Mrs. S. M. Wenrich, Frank Crites, Durbin Crites, Kirby Gearhart, Elmer Wolf, Mrs. F. W. Smith, Mrs. Walter Miesse and Miss Nettie Steward. All are Stoutsville residents, except Elmer Wolf, North Court Street. The Rev. Mr. Wenrich is committee chairman.

This organization comprises students who attended the Stoutsville schools before commencement were held there. The dinner will be held in the school gym.

The committee will fix the definite date and complete other details of entertainment. Former teachers as well as pupils are to be invited and any students who have old school photographs or autograph albums are asked to take them along.

Other officers are Durbin Crites, vice-president, and Mrs. Walter Miesse, secretary-treasurer.

DR. JOHN W. SHOOK DIES; FUNERAL IS THURSDAY

Dr. John W. Shook, 87, widely known retired Canal Winchester physician, and father of the late Mrs. Orin Gessley, died early Tuesday in Lancaster Hospital. Dr. Shook had practiced medicine for 50 years in Canal Winchester, retiring last January.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Laura Shook; two daughters, Mrs. Helen Boyer of Lancaster and Mrs. Katherine For of Canal Winchester, and four grandchildren, John Rudolph Gessley, of Columbus, Katharine Louise Gessley of Dayton, Sarah F. For of Canal Winchester, and Laura Jane Boyer of Lancaster. The late Mrs. Orin Gessley was Hazel Shook before her marriage.

The funeral will be Thursday at 2 p. m. at the J. E. Grimes Funeral Home, Canal Winchester, with burial in Forest Rose Cemetery, Lancaster.

NEFFNER DECLINES AID FOR SOCIALIST PARTY

COLUMBUS, July 17—Socialist party attempts for intervention by Secretary of State George E. Neffner against police accused of molesting circulators of Socialist candidate petitions today apparently had failed.

Neffner refused to become involved in the question, but cited the state law which forbids intimidation of persons carrying petitions.

STATE PATROL PLANS CHANGES AS SUGGESTED

COLUMBUS, July 17—The Ohio State Highway Patrol will adopt several changes recommended by the International Association of Chiefs of Police it was indicated today following a conference between association representatives, Col. Lynn Black, head of the highway patrol, and Col. Herbert S. Beightler, highway director.

In order to make more patrolmen available for accident-prevention work, the following changes were recommended and will probably be placed into effect:

1—Escort duty and special assignments will be decreased.

2—Two-man patrols will be split to increase traffic activity at times and places of high accident frequency.

3—Printed warning forms will be given drivers for minor violations, which will be charged against their records.

4—Examiners will be hired to give driver's examinations.

Col. Beightler said legislative action would be necessary before the examiners, about seventy in number, could be hired. Col. Black said he would seek the action at the next legislative assembly.

197 TAKEN FROM HOSPITAL, SCENE OF HUGE BLAZE

TOLEDO, July 17—Firemen today removed 197 patients to safety when a three-alarm fire broke out in the attic of a 56-year-old wing of St. Vincent's Hospital, one of the city's largest.

None of the patients was injured, although one fireman, Hugh Gallagher, 49, was overcome by smoke.

Hospital attendants reported that firemen brought all the patients down ladders without injury although several were sickened by smoke.

Forty-nine babies were also removed to a fireproof wing of the building, attendants said.

The hospital has 341 patients.

In Hitler's triumphal return to Berlin it is seen that the greatest men in the world are still the men who have killed the most people.

TWO CINNATIANS DIE IN AUTO, TRUCK MISHAP

CINCINNATI, July 17—Two Cincinnati youths were dead today and two others seriously injured as the result of auto-truck crash near Stockton late yesterday afternoon.

The dead are James Melton, 22, brother of two Cincinnati patrolmen, and Robert Burns, 22. The injured Lee Butler, 23, alleged driver of the car, and Walter Kasmaier, 20, Charles Betz, 26, also of Cincinnati, driver of the truck, escaped injury.

According to officers, the youths were attempting to pass another car when their auto collided head-on with the truck.

Congratulations to Rancher Fren Defender of Ontario California, who is happy about a brood of red, white and blue pigs born on July 4.

FIFTY PICKAWAY 4-H CLUB MEMBERS ENROLL FOR ANNUAL CAMP TRIP

REGISTRATIONS FOR JUNIORS TO START MONDAY

Five Counties Cooperating In Trips To Grounds South Of Adelphi

BLAIR IS ON COMMITTEE

Senior Group Scheduled To Leave July 29; Program Being Arranged

Final arrangements for fifty Pickaway County 4-H Club members to attend the annual 4-H camp at the Ross-Hocking camp grounds, eight miles south of Adelphi, were being made Wednesday by Agricultural Agent F. K. Blair.

Registration for the Junior Camp, including boys and girls between 10 and 13 years old, will begin Monday, with a varied program including handicraft, photography, nature study, first aid, swimming and games scheduled for the remainder of the week.

The Senior Camp is scheduled to open July 29 and will continue to August 3. Members of the executive committee include F. K. Blair, Pickaway County; Ross Wright, Athens County; Mabel Westervelt, Fairfield County; James Smoot, Hocking County; and Don Rihl, Ross County.

Mrs. J. A. McEwen, Lancaster, will lead the singing and vespers services at the senior camp. Don Rihl will conduct the campfire meetings and Fred C. Pierson of Columbus will be in charge of swimming.

Approximately 125 4-H club members, representing Ross, Hocking, Athens, Fairfield, and Pickaway Counties, will attend either the junior or the senior camps.

Applications to the camps are still being received by Mr. Blair, who reported Wednesday that the following had already registered for the Junior camp: John Noecker, Barbara Courtwright, Billy Courtright, Max Luckhart, Dwight Rector, Jr., Donna Mae Purcell, John M. Brinker, Joan Brinker, Donna A. May, Elsiean Cromley, Marilyn Briggs, Dane Mounts, Raymond Mounts Jr., Floridene Snyder, Donald Strous, Billy Speakman, Richard Murray Heath, Betty Davis, Virginia Griffith and June Ann Davy.

SHEETS FUNERAL RITES TO BE THURSDAY AT 3

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 3 p. m. in the Albaugh Co. Chapel for Mrs. Martha Sheets, 90, who died Tuesday at midnight at the home of a son, Clarence, in Akron, O. The Rev. A. N. Gruesser will officiate, with burial in Forest Cemetery. Her grandsons will act as pall bearers.

Mrs. Sheets was born in Union Township, Ross County, March 25, 1850, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm. Her husband, Chapman Sheets, died January 12, 1928.

Surviving are the following children: Harry chief of police in Portsmouth; Clarence, Akron, Mrs. Albert Dodd, Columbus; John, Akron, and Mrs. Margaret Brobst, Erie, Pa.

rect contrast to Lewis' anti-Roosevelt fireworks at the GOP convention, denounced Willkie at the platform committee hearings as an enemy of unions and the National Labor Relations Board.

All this, like Lewis' performance in Philadelphia, was no accident. It was carefully arranged in advance for the express purpose of repudiating Lewis' attitude.

NOTE:—Either Murray or Kennedy is certain to be one of the co-chairmen of the Democratic Labor Campaign Committee.

CONVENTION MERRY-GO-ROUND

Strange pre-convention visitor to the National Committee headquarters here was John Raskob, chairman from 1928 to 1932 and with Al Smith a bolter in 1936. Raskob spent a half-hour conferring privately with Farley.

Two most photographed women at the convention are Evie Robert, photogenic wife of the secretary of the National Committee, and stately, white-haired Mrs. Mack, National Committeewoman from the Virgin Islands.

Two other unusual visitors are Mrs. Alice Longworth and Forrest Davis, goateed newsman, both active in the nearly successful GOP presidential campaign of Senator Taft before her marriage.

The funeral will be Thursday at 2 p. m. at the J. E. Grimes Funeral Home, Canal Winchester, with burial in Forest Rose Cemetery, Lancaster.
